ALLIES FIRM AS GERMANS ATTEMPT TO DODGE ISSUE

Spa Conference Finishes; Allies Stand Firm On All Points

COAL BIG ISSUE

Stinnes Makes Faux Pax And Is Reprimanded On All Sides

RIGHTS QUESTION

German Delegates Sign, But Say Reichstag Must Yet Act

(French Wireless Service)

Spa, July 10.—The following communique was issued today:—

"Dr. von Simons communicated to the Conference Germany's reply to the Allies' notification with regard to coal. He disputed the legal right of the Allies to impose this decision.

"He admitted that deliveries of coal should not have been diminished, nor contracts with other States concluded, in the absence of agreement with the Reparations Commission; but added that the failure of Germany to carry out her engagements was solely due to force majeure.

"Dr. von Simons said that the question of production and distribution of coal could only be settled by common investigation. He said that Herren Hugo Stinnes and Hue should be examined, because they would prove the impossibility of granting absolut priority in deliveries of coal to the Allies.

STINNES AND HUE

Herren Stinnes and Hue were then examined. They said it was impossible to accept the Allies' pronouncement because the coal problem was international and could be solved, not by the will of the Allies, but only by an understanding on a footing of perfect equality and agreement with the workers.

The President of the Conference had to call Herr Stinnes to order on account of the provocative tone he adopted.

The sitting was adjourned.

NO OCCUPATIONS

(Reuter's Service)

Spa, July 9.—Although the Germans accepted the disarmament terms of the Allies, the Berlin Cabinet has decided to inform the Allies that it has no authority under the German Constitution, without the approval of the Reichstag, to accept the stipulation concerning the possible occupation of the Ruhr or other territories; if, in the judgment of the Allies, disarmament is not carried out according to the agreement.

QUESTION OF COAL

Spa, July 11.—The second plenary sitting of the Spa Conference was held from 4:30 p.m. until 7 p.m. yesterday.

M. Millerand replied to the observations of the German delegation on the question of coal. Referring to Herr Stinnes's statements, which he described as unseemly, M. Millerand announced that Dr. von Simons had informed him that the German delegation disclaimed all responsibility for the speaker's remarks.

HE THANKS FRANCE

Dr. von Simons explained the German plan with regard to the question of reparations. He thanked the French Premier for his statement; which, he said, showed that France favored helping Germany to rebuild her economic fabric to facilitate the fulfilment of her obligations.

The German reparations scheme will be handed to the Allies this evening so that the discussion of the question may finish tomorrow morning. The first section, relating to the furnishing of coal, has already been submitted to the Allied experts.

The second section relates to the furnishing of material to the devastated districts.

UNWISE REMARK

Spa, July 11.—On Friday morning Herr Hugo Stinnes, the well known German financier, who had been called as a witness on the coal question, while giving evidence, made an unfortunate remark which offended members of the Conference, and he was called to order by the President, M. Delacroix.

The German delegates have ex-

TUAN'S COUP COMPLETELY SMASHED WHEN HIS TROOPS REFUSE TO FIGHT; JAPANESE ATTEMPTS TO AID FAIL

BY NATHANIEL PEFFER

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, July 13 (1 a.m.).—The disaffection of Field Marshal Tuan's troops is completely changing the situation.

Tuan's men are refusing to fight. Whereas, yesterday, Tuan was demanding a Presidential mandate, naming him dictator and authorising him to attack Wu Pei-fu, Tuan adherents today are appealing to the President to issue a mandate to stop the fighting, and asking Wu Pei-fu not to act—thus restoring peace.

Tuan and his crowd are badly scared. Tuan's troops, after a small skirmish, have fled from Kao-peitien to Chochow and Liuliho.

Another factor tending to restore the balance is Chang Tso-lin's strong telegram to President Hsu, denouncing Tuan as an enemy to peace, and demanding that the President support the Chihli faction.

Still another strong factor is that Ma-Liang has suddenly withdrawn towards Tsinan, after Tsao Tehchow.

The Tsinpu and Kinhan railways are still tied up, but wild rumors of big fighting, which are circulating here, are entirely unfounded. As yet there have been only brief skirmishes of vanguards.

Today the President's stiffening of attitude has caused all talk that Tuan would be appointed military dictator to be dropped, and Tuan's backers are not pressing the subject.

Signs of disorder among the soldiers, more dangerous possibly than anything else, are already appearing. They are commandeering carts, richas and all other vehicles, and even conscripting all coolies they can reach; thus adding to the hardships of the people.

If Tuan's troops retreat further, most serious results are feared in Peking. The streets are now practically deserted.

Authentic reports say that Japanese officers are helping the Anfuites, especially in the artillery; and this is hardly deniable.

Chang Tso-lin has been forced by Japanese threats to return to Mukden. They say that if he uses his troops to fight Tuan, they will interfere.

Some British aviators have made air recohnaisances, but the British Legation has promised that this will cease at once.

The outlook is now favorable to peace, as Tuan's wings have been clipped; and the President is seeking to prevail upon Wu Pei-fu and Tsao Kun not to force the issue, but to compromise, thus saving face all around.

Dyer, "Terror Of Punjab," Flayed In Commons For Brutal Methods Employed

Went On Theory Of "Sheer Frightfulness" During Amritsar Riots, Says Speaker—Sir Edward Carson Speaks In Defense Of Veteran General

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 8.—Great interest was manifested in the House of Commons today in the debate on the Hunter report and the case of Brigadier-General Dyer.

The House was crowded and there were visible signs of excitement when Mr. Montagu rose to move the vote of £53,500 as a contribution for the cost of the Department of the Secretary of State for India in Council.

The Secretary of State deprecated criticism of the Hunter Committee, resenting emphatically the criticism already offered.

Mr. Montagu declared that General Dyer had acted during the riots in the Punjab on the theory of terrorism and subordination. General Dyer, he said, on the theory that he intended to teach the whole of the Punjab a moral lesson, had embarked on terrorism to which there was no end but opposition.

"FRIGHTFULNESS!"

Mr. Montagu described the flogging orders as "sheer frightfulness," and asked whether Great Britain was going to keep her hold on India by terrorism, racial humiliation, subordination and frightfulness, or by the growing good-will of the people of the Indian Empire.

It was no use, he said, passing a great act of Parliament, which proceeded on the principle of partnership for the Indian in the British Commonwealth, and then allowing the Administration to depend on terrorism.

"India," the speaker continued, "is on your side in enforcing order. Are you on India's side in insuring that order is enforced with the maintenance of the love of liberty of the British democracy?"

TELLS OF 37 SHOOTINGS

Mr. Montagu pointed out that there were 37 instances of firing in last year's disturbances, and that only one was censured as it impinged on the principles, which had always animated the British Army—the principles on which the Indian Empire had been built.

Amid considerable show of dissent, the Secretary of State declared that there was a theory abroad among the critics of the Government that the Indian was only tolerable as long as he obeyed orders; and that, if he once became educated, he was to be classed as an agitator.

In conclusion, Mr. Montagu asked the House whether its theory of rule in India was racial ascendancy, domination and subordination, or partnership.

WHICH POLICY

If it was the former, then it followed that the sword must be used with increasing severity, until Great Britain had been driven out of the country by the opinion of the united civilised world.

The choice of the House was fundamental to the continuance of the British Empire and the connection betwen Great Britain and India.

Sir Edward Carson considered that Mr. Montagu's argument was irrelevant and urged the House to be fair to a gallant officer with thirty-four years' service without a blemish. He asked whether General Dyer had received a fair trial before being broken and sent into disgrace.

PLEA FOR DYER

Sir Edward entered a passionate plea for General Dyer, urging that the man ought not to be punished for dealing to the best of his ability with a situation for which he was not in the slightest degree responsible.

Mr. Winston Churchill explained at length the Army Regulation with reference to retirement, adding that the decision of the Army Council had been reached unanimously.

While assenting to the Council's decision, Mr. Churchill held himself free in the event of the Cabinet deciding to make further submissions to the Crown for the retirement of General Dyer from the Army.

The Cabinet had, however, accepted the conclusions of the Army Council.

"MONSTROUS EVENT"

Mr. Churchill described the Jallianwallaghbagh incident as a "monstrous event," standing out "in sinister isolation," and proceeded to lay down four broad lines for the future guidance of officers:

Firstly, is the crowd attacking anybody?

Secondly, is the crowd armed?

Thirdly, no more force should be used than is necessary to secure compliance with the law.

Fourthly, an officer should confine himself to a limited and definite objective.

The War Secretary also laid down one general prohibition, namely, against frightfulness, which could not be admitted in

POLES RETREAT ON BIG FRONT; REDS TO FORCE THRU TO MINSK

Letts Agree To Occupy Positions Evacuated Near Dvinsk

POLES DON'T DENY

Thousands Volunteer In Answer To Pleadings Of Churchmen

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 9.—Telegrams received in London show that the Poles are continuing to retreat along the whole front. The depth of the retreat in the center is 60 miles and will probably involve the abandonment of Minsk.

The Times Warsaw correspondent records a narrow escape of the British Attache, General Carton de Wiart, at Rovno. A shell struck his car and the General had to run some hundreds of yards and clamber on board the last train evacuating the town.

The peasants are fleeing before the advancing Bolsheviks, who are dealing ruthlessly with those captured.

LETTS TO RESCUE

Copenhagen, July 9.—According to a telegram from Rovno, Poland has requested Latvia to occupy the positions which the Poles have been obliged to evacuate in the region of Dvinsk, and also to take possession of the war material abandoned by the Poles.

It is reported that the Letts have already responded by crossing the Dvina and operating in the direction of Skudzelyns (?).

ADMIT REVERSES

Warsaw, July 8.—A communique, issued today by the Polish General Staff, admits that Budienny's cavalry, attacking from the west, have occupied Rovno and compelled the Poles to retreat. There has been heavy fighting on all sectors of the Polesia front.

A later communique says that, between the Dvina and the Upper Beresina, the Poles have retired in face of superior numbers of the enemy, who have also crossed the Beresina in force, to the southeast of Borysoff. A Polish counter-action is developing.

MANY VOLUNTEERS

In view of the military situation, offers to serve with the colors are pouring in from all classes, from University professors to Boy Scouts.

Japanese Propaganda Is Seen In Tirade Against U. S. And British Firms

Certain Japanese commercial interests seemingly are endeavoring to take advantage of the plight of the Chinese peace-goods dealers, who are facing tremendous losses, due to changes in the rate of exchange, and who have appealed vainly for aid to the British and American Chambers of Commerce.

When the Chinese announced that, at current exchange rates, they would lose Taels 80,000,000 in coming months and many be forced into bankruptcy, they asked the foreign commercial organisations to assist them in effecting modifications of existing contracts and sought also to have more recent contracts cancelled.

The requests for co-operation were denied by the foreign Chambers who held they could do nothing.

JAPANESE CIRCULAR

At a recent meeting of the Chinese business men a circular of significant tone was passed to those present—from a Japanese source. A translation of the circular is given as follows:

"Wake up Chinese peace-goods buyers! Did you trust the English and the American? You have seen how the market recently has been affected, and you see that they do not feel for you and do not sympathise.

"They talk of friendship, but they talk falsely. Since you made the contracts with the English and the American firms your losses have been huge. Did you ever think about it?

"You have suggested that the contracts be cancelled and they have answered that contracts are sacred, and may not be disobeyed. From what they say this is a threat. Does it seem to you right and just?

"There is cause to believe that you are cheated. Your late losses may be estimated to be more than $60,000,000.

"Think! The Japanese always have filled your contracts for goods justly and honestly. They have never treated you unjustly.

"Compare what has happened with the way the Japanese have done. Therefore these unjust contracts should not be accepted by you.

COMPROMISE IS REACHED BETWEEN KIANGSU AND CHEKIANG TUCHUNS; TROOPS BEING WITHDRAWN TODAY

General Li Shun

He is alleged to have torn up the Shanghai-Nanking Railway at Henli, and yesterday effected a compromise with his rival and opponent, General Lu Yung-hsiang, the Chekiang Military Governor. They agreed to have the line repaired at once.

REPAIR WORK ON DAMAGED LINE TO BEGIN AT ONCE

Chihli-Anfu Clash In North Increases In Gravity, Fighting Reported

TSAO KUN IS DEFIANT

Establishes Headquarters At Kaopaitien And Puts Wu Pei-fu In Command

Local tension was considerably relieved yesterday when an order was received from General Lu Yung-hsiang, the Chekiang Tuchun, by General Ho Fung-lin, the Acting Defense Commissioner at Shanghai, to withdraw the latter's troops sent down to Quinsan on Sunday morning, following the suspension of the traffic along the Shanghai-Nanking Railway.

The move is expected to soften the iron hand of Tuchun Li Shun of this province, who recently has been inclined to get excited over the slightest irritation, because of the appointment of General Ho, a Lu nominee, instead of his own favorite, General Chi Shih-yuan.

The troops, a portion of the Tenth Division originally stationed at the Lunghua Arsenal where General Ho resides, were despatched, with the approval of General Lu of Chekiang, to Quinsan upon receipt of the news that certain Kiangsu troops had smashed the railway bridge at Henli and set up machine and field guns there, on account of the Anfu-Chihli contest in Peking.

The withdrawal will be completed today, unless some complications set in. The railway administration will immediately make an effort to repair the damaged section and resume traffic at an early date. Engineers were sent down to the scene Sunday and yesterday but they were unable to go byond Lukaipang.

LU'S ORDERS

The telegram of General Lu Yung-hsiang to General Ho stated that the movement of troops by both sides to Quinsan and vicinity was made through some misunderstanding and as the organisations in Shanghai and the managing director of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway are anxious to have the traffic restored and to have the troops withdrawn, he was quite willing to do so.

General Lu said he had already secured the endorsement of General Li of Kiangsu to act in concert in this matter and therefore gave orders to General Ho to rush back the troops to their original post in order that the resumption of the railway service be affected at once.

General Ho immediately called a meeting of the high military officers and planned to complete the withdrawal today. Mr. C. P. Yin, the Managing Director of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, has been requested to have the necessary cars ready to bring the forces back to the Arsenal.

CONSULAR BODY ACTS

It is understood that the local Consular Body has lodged a protest with the local authorities against the action of suspending the service along the Shanghai-Nanking Railway. It pointed out the grave situation created by the action and the damage to be suffered by the foreign residents here.

Two leading local Kuomingtang politicians left for Hangchow Saturday. They were accompanied by Major-General Ma Hung-li, aide of General Lu Yung-hsiang of Chekiang, Lieutenant Li Ching-ching and Mr. Tu Shun, director of Hangchow Customs.

Several local bodies have protested against the use of the Border Defense in the present strife. There are over 200 Japanese officers in the army and the main purpose of the army was to defend the country against "the common enemy," the Germans.

YIN'S TELEGRAMS

Mr. C. P. Yin, managing director of the Shanghai-Nanking Railway, yesterday addressed two urgent telegrams to General Li Shun. In

All China Railways Cut When Chihli Militarists Go After Anfuite's Scalp

Shanghai And Suburbs Isolated From Rest Of Province As Local Defense Commissioner Marches Forces Against Kiangsu Military Governor

Communications on all the principal railways in China are interrupted as the two Northern militaristic factions, the Chihli party and the Anfu Club, are on the verge of a fight for supremacy.

The Shanghai-Nanking Railway is torn up at Henli. Just who did the tearing is now a matter of speculation.

It is generally understood that Tuchun Li Shun, of this province, has ordered the removed of the rails and the bridge; but in a message to the Acting Defense Commissioner here, he inquired the reason why communications along the line were stopped on Sunday, and ordered him to investigate whether or not the troops there were responsible for causing the inconvenience.

The Tientsin-Pukow line has been dismantled at Techow by General Shan Teh-chuan, in command of the Chihli troops there. He did so because General Ma Liang was attempting to despatch the Seventh and the Eighth Brigades to reinforce Marshal Tuan Chi-jui. Shan has also captured the Techow Arsenal, after ousting its director Sun Tsang-kon.

Along the Peking-Mukden Railway trenches have been dug by the Border Defense Army at Changchwang, and by the Chihli men at Yangcheng.

General Chang Tso-lin, who returned to the Fengtien capital on Saturday, has commandeered all the rolling stock north of Changchwang.

JUST A SECTION

Only a short section of the Peking-Hankow Railway is accessable by train. The northbound cars get only as far as Changhsintien, as fighting has already begun in Chochow and Liuliho.

General Tsao Kun is making Kaopaitien his headquarters, having appointed General Wu Pei-fu commander-in-chief of the vanguards, with General Wang Chen-ping as his assistant.

HISTORICAL MOVE

The interruption along the Shanghai-Nanking line on Saturday night caused the greatest sensation since the days of the first revolution. After the tearing down of the Henli railway bridge, it is alleged by the railway authorities, the Kiangsu troops planted explosives and set up machine guns about 30 miles from Shanghai.

Movement of Shanghai local troops began Saturday night. The Tenth Division, stationed at the Arsenal, despatched two regiments of infantry, one battalion of artillery, one company of engineers and one battalion of cavalry to Quinsan and Nanziang.

Fifteen miles above Quinsan, a regiment of infantry of the Second Division, under direct command of General Li Shun, is busy in digging trenches and setting up guns.

The gap left at the Lunghua Arsenal is being filled by Chekiang troops from Sunkiang. They are now stationed at the South Station and the office of the Acting Defense Commissioner.

MARTIAL LAW HERE

Martial law was declared on Saturday night at midnight, as soon as news of the Kiangsu antagonism was received by the Acting Defense Commissioner.

Rumors were current throughout the night.

A certain commissioner here was suspected of having acted in collusion with Tuchun Li Shun in ousting the Acting Defense Commissioner, General Ho Fung-ling, and the proclamation of martial law was effected following a conference attended by General Ho, Taoyin Wang Keng-ting, foreign Commissioner Hsu Yuan, Police Commissioner Hsu Kuo-liang, Magistrate Shen Pao-chang, Commander Yung of the Woosung Forts and Commander Chen Lu-san of the Fourth Division.

NAVY IS NEUTRAL

The Chamber of Commerce has requested Admiral K. K. Lang, commander-in-chief of the Chinese Navy, to remain neutral during the present crisis. It pointed out that the present threat is only due to a slight misunderstanding, and if the Navy stands aloof, a general disturbance of the peace may be averted.

The Chamber has also telegraphed to both Tuchun Li of Kiangsu and Tuchun Lu Yung-

the first message, he pointed out the importance of the resumption of the traffic between Shanghai, the commercial metropolis of the Far East, and points north along the line. He stated that the station master at Quinsan had been told by Commander Tang of the Kiangsu troops that no repair work could be done until General Li ordered so.

In reply, General Li expressed his sincere desire to see the resumption of the traffic. He denied having ordered the tearing up of the section near Henli and expressed doubt whether the troops in that district were responsible of the act. He stated that he had ordered the Garrison Commissioner there to conduct a thorough investigation as to who is the real culprit. He welcomed Mr. Yin's proposal to repair the damaged section immediately.

SECOND MESSAGE

In his second message yesterday to General Li, Mr. Yin informed him of the order received by General Ho Fung-lin to withdraw the troops despatched to Quinsan to show the sincerity of General Lu Yung-hsiang in refraining from clashing against the Kiangsu troops and again urged him to instruct his military officers there directly to allow repair work to proceed.

DEMAND DIRECT ORDER

Mr. Yin said that the officers there still insist on having a direct order from the Kiangsu Tuchun before they allow the rails to be re-installed. They also insist, Mr. Yin said, that the Chekiang and the Kiangsu Tuchuns should both pledge that no movement of troops be made during the political crisis in Peking.

Late last night, Mr. Yin received a telegram from General Chu, Garrison Commissioner of Soochow, to state that General Li and General Lu have reached an understanding whereby neither will cross the defense line of the other, and that repair work can proceed along the line without delay.

Nanking bound trains could only reach Nansiang yesterday. Beyond Soochow, however, the usual traffic is maintained.

While the local situation is easier, the atmosphere in the North continues to be gloomy.

CLASHES REPORTED

Clashes have already been reported in Changchwang on the Peking-Mukden line and in Liuliho on the Peking-Hankow Railway. Machines of the Department of Aeronautics flew to Kaopaition, the headquarters of General Tsao Kun, to perform scout duty. The action however, drew a protest from the Diplomatic Corps.

The Corps has decided to recall all foreign employes in the military, naval and air services of the Chinese Government. The British Legation has already set an example by withdrawing the services of Britishers connected with the Department of Aeronautics.

Legation quarters are heavily fortified. Machine guns have been set up and Allied guards are doing patrol duty.

TSAO KUN DEFIANT

Tsao Kun is defiant. Old Hsu threatens to resign, having drafted his resignation and may submit it any time to the new Parliament. Tuan accuses Tsao, Chang Tso-lin and Wu Pei-fu of being in league with Chang Hsun, the monarchist, to restore a monarchial form of government in China.

Japanese money is making Tuan confident of his victory. Two more railway lines, the Kinhan and the Peking-Mukden railways will be mortgaged for $6,000,000.

With this money, Tuan is organising a punitive expedition against the Chihli militarists, appointing himself commander-in-chief and Little Tuan, his assistant.

Public opinion, however, is not sympathetic with either. Both are militaristic factions. The victory of either will give no benefit to the people. The same oppression against the civilians repeats itself when either come into power. Between the two, however, the Chihli party is more acceptable. It has at least refrained from bartering away the national resources.

CANTON OPPOSES TUAN

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Canton, July 11.—The Canton military government, after a debate on the northern factional dispute, have resolved against Marshal Tuan Chi-jui, as they believe the Japanese power in China will thus be broken.

(China Press Correspondence)

WANG NEUTRAL

Hankow, July 12.—General Wu Kwang-hsin, Anfu lieutenant and brother-in-law of General Tuan Chi-jui, is concentrating his troops here and is reported to have placed strong guards at Wuhsinkwan, the northern gateway to Hupeh.

General Chang Ching-yao, routed Tuchun of Hunan, is assisting Wu in his anti-Chihli plans.

Tuchun Wang Chuan-yuan of Hupeh has openly declared that he will remain neutral in the present Anfu-Chihli struggle, and is urging the other Yangtsze Tuchuns, Generals Li Shun of Kiangsu and General Chen Kwan-yuan of Kiangsi, to unite in keeping lower Yangtsze on a neutral stand.

Outgoing trains along the Peking-Hankow Railway can only reach Chengchow.

WU PEI-FU HERO

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, July 16.—Probably in no previous domestic upheaval has public opinion shown such a keen and intelligent interest in the motives of the rival factions.

With no Chinese press in Peking to put his case before the people, General Wu Pei-fu is looked on as an opponent of militarism, who sincerely desires to promote the welfare of his country, making it China for the Chinese rather than the appendage of another country.

The importance of the issue is not overlooked, as it is recognised that the future of the pro-Japanese party hangs in the immediate balance.

Foreign opinion is divided into three camps: (1) those who believe that an eleventh-hour compromise will be effected; (2) those who maintain that fighting will commence immediately, to be followed by general declarations of independence, with subsequent bargainings with the victors; and (3) those who hold that the South will support General Wu Pei-fu and so bring about a fresh grouping of forces.

"PUNITIVE EXPEDITION"

General Tuan Chi-kwei whom Marshal Tuan Chi-jui appointed to command the "punitive expedition" against Gen Wu Pei-fu, departed yesterday for the Peking-Hankow railway front.

General Shu-tseng traveled by the Peking-Tientsin line, probably to Langfang.

Passenger traffic is suspended on the Kalgan line, obviously in order to facilitate the passage of the 3rd Mixed Brigade of the Frontier Defense Force.

Conflicting reports have been received regarding the 2nd Mixed Brigade at Honanfu, which the experts consider to hold the key to the situation.

One report states that the brigade has laid down its arms; another that it has been cut up; while the Antu Club declares that it has beaten off attacks and remains intact.

There are also conflicting reports regarding Tehchow, though all agree that the Tientsin-Pukow railway line has been cut in that neighborhood—but by whom is not known.

CHANG HSUN MOVES

General Chang Hsun departed from Peking secretly yesterday. It is believed that he is at present at Tientsin.

As a result of the Cabinet meeting yesterday, the Government telegraphed to General Tsao Kun, instructing him to withdraw his troops from the vicinity of the railway, otherwise active measures would be taken against him.

Notwithstanding the denials of the Japanese that funds have been given to the troops of the Frontier Defense Force, all men proceeding to the front have received six months' arrears of pay, while men remaining in the rear have received three months' arrears.

GERMAN AEROS NOT IN LEAD

Briton Tells Of Progress In Aviation During The Past Year

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 9.—Lord Londonderry, opening the International Aero Exhibition here today, referred to "recent alarmist and exaggerated statements" on the subject of the air developments of other nations, especially Germany.

He added that Germany at present had 49 undertakings licensed to take part in air traffic, which were represented by 19 transport companies, of which only two were actually working, and 30 factories, 4 of which were engaged in research work and two in engine designing.

The Control Commission had sanctioned the use of a few commercial machines of no military value, he said, for the purpose of the resumption of air traffic in Germany on a small scale.

OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Major-General Sir Frederick Sykes, Controller-General of Civil Aviation, alluded to the presence of so many Dominions representatives at the Exhibition, as proving the universal interest aroused by aviation.

General Sykes expressed satisfaction that the exhibits included so many seaplanes, flying boats and amphibians. He said it was most essential that "we in our seagirt Empire" should develop these types of aircraft.

Since August 26, 1919, when international flying was first permitted, air services had been established between London and Paris and London and Amsterdam, while a service between London and Brussels would shortly be inaugurated.

FEW INTERRUPTIONS

General Sykes mentioned the remarkable fact that, throughout the winter months, there had only been ten days on which the London-Paris service had been interrupted. He then gave the following striking figures:

Number of flights carried out in the first year of civil aviation, 38,953; approximate mileage flown, 734,260 miles; number of passengers carried, 70,000.

There was only one fatality.

Weight of goods transported 148,498 pounds, 114 aerodromes were licensed and 519 machines registered to the end of March, while the value of imports and exports transported by air was £200,000.

ACCOUNTANT IS HELD ON CHARGE OF BOGUS CHECK

Employe Of Henderson And King Is Captured By Tientsin Police

After having been missing from Shanghai for several weeks, R. M. F. da Rosa, an accountant for Henderson and King, was apprehended at Tientsin and brought back here for trial on a charge of forgery. He is accused of having uttered a bogus check against his firm for Taels 2,100. The case came before the Portuguese consular court yesterday and was remanded.

Da Rosa had been working for the firm but a short time when the Dragon Boat Festival took place. This enabled him to be absent from the office for the holidays and when he failed to return to work nothing was suspected for some little time, it being the impression that he was confined to his apartments by illness.

But a member of the firm had occasion to use the company's check book and discovered that an unauthorised check of Taels 2,100 had been uttered. An investigation followed with the result that warrants were issued for da Rosa and an alleged accomplice named Cohen. The latter has not yet been apprehended.

BRITON STATES NATION'S STAND ON SHANTUNG

Bonar Law Refers Inquirer To Statements By Japan, Made Last Year

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 7.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Mr. Neil Maclean, Mr. Bonar Law said that, as far as the British Government was concerned, the signatories to the Peace Treaty had embodied in the Treaty their full obligations.

Concerning Japan's intention with regard to Shantung, he said that he must refer Mr. Maclean to the statements of the Japanese Peace Delegation in May and August, 1919.

The Government, he said, could not undertake to make a statement on behalf of the French and Italian Governments, but the British commitments to Japan with regard to Shantung were contained in Articles 156 and 158 of the Peace Treaty.

As far as he was aware, Mr. Bonar Law continued, the Chinese Government had instructed its delegates in Paris to sign the Treaty as it stood.

He regretted that he was not in a position to say whether the Allied Council had declined to accept the Chinese offer to sign, provided that the Council of Four guaranteed to hear China's case with regard to Shantung, as by the decision of the Peace Conference its proceedings could not be divulged.

Ottawa, July 8.—The resignation of the Borden Government takes effect from July 10.

It is officially announced that Mr. Arthur Meighen, Minister of the Interior, will be entrusted with the formation of the new Administration, which has accepted the retirement of two Ministers from the Cabinet, viz., Mr. Newton Rowell, president of the Privy Council, and Mr. Martin Burrell, Secretary of State and Minister of Mines.

any form. He said that it was his personal opinion that General Dyer should have been placed on the compulsorily-retired list.

JUDGMENT APPROVED

Mr. Asquith pointed out that the judgment passed on General Dyer had been supported by the Government of India and confirmed by the British Cabinet and independently by the Army Council. He therefore contended that General Dyer had a full and fair hearing. He severely criticised the abrogation of their functions by the civil authorities of Amritsar.

A Labor motion for the reduction of the estimates was defeated by 246 to 27. A number of Unionists abstained from voting.

Sir Edward Carson's motion for the reduction of the estimates was defeated by 230 to 129.

DYER'S EVIDENCE

London, July 8.—A White Paper has been issued, giving the evidence of General Dyer, who commanded the troops on the occasion of the Amritsar riots, in view of the debate on the Hunter report, which takes place in the House of Commons this afternoon.

General Dyer points out that he knew the military dangers of the position and "the cloud of Afghanistan," and that he also realised that the gathering in Jallianwallaghbagh was not "fortuitous," but had assembled with the express intent of challenging Government authority and to defy him to fire upon them. It was, in fact, a rebel army.

General Dyer says he was conscious that a great offensive movement was gathering and that to sit still and await complete mobilisation would be fatal. He could not regard the Jallianwallahbagh assembly as a mere political gathering. He looked on Amritsar as the storm center of rebellion. He also knew that attempts were being made to reduce his troops.

A FEARFUL CHOICE

If he had shirked the challenge, General Dyer proceeds, there would infallibly have followed a general mob movement inside and outside Amritsar, which would have destroyed the European population and involved in its ruin the law-abiding Indian population, leading to similar results throughout the Punjab.

General Dyer contends that his object was right—that the force used was not excessive, and that it achieved the desired effect; also that no less force would have achieved that effect.

Allies Firm As Germans Attempt To Dodge Issue

pressed their regret for the language used by Herr Stinner.

The same morning the German Chancellor, Herr Fehrenbach, and Dr. von Simons told the Secretary-General of the Conference that, if they had known that Herr Stinnes was going to express himself in such a manner, they would not have permitted him to speak.

REFER TO REICHSTAG

Spa, July 10.—The German delegation to the Spa Conference yesterday presented their reply to the Allied note on the subject of disarmament.

The German Foreign Minister, whilst declaring himself ready to sign the protocol, explained that the penalties provided in the case of non-fulfilment could not be accepted without reference to the Reichstag.

Mr. Lloyd George replied that there appeared to be no reason for the intervention of the Richstag, as it was for the Allies to take retributive measures if Germany did not carry out the military clauses of the Treaty.

DECIDED TO SIGN

The German Chancellor agreed and declared that the German delegation would sign the Protocol.

After having reached complete agreement on the question of war criminals, the Conference unanimously decided that the trials should be proceeded with immediately.

The coal question was next dealt with, M. Millerand defending France's claims. The German delegates have to present their reply this morning to a note which stipulates that Germany must pledge herself to supply 150,000 tons of coal monthly under penalty for non-fulfilment.

The Conference also discussed Russo-Polish affairs.

M. Millerand and Marshal Foch visited Malmedy this morning. M. Millerand will return to Paris on Tuesday morning.

PROTOCOL SIGNED

Spa, July 9.—The following communique was issued by the Conference this evening:

"The German delegation signed the protocol, after Mr. Lloyd George, refuting the delegation's contention, had said that he did not see the necessity to bring in the Reichstag respecting sanctions which it rested with the Allies eventually to put into execution; and which, moreover, were expressly provided for by the protocol of January 10.

"With regard to war criminals, it was agreed that expert Allied and German Ministers should meet in the afternoon, preliminarily to discussing the position regarding proceedings in the Leipzig High Court.

"The German delegation admitted that it was equally Germany's interest with that of the Allies that crimes against the laws of war should be punished."

6,000,000 RIFLES

Spa, July 8.—General von Seeckt, at the Conference yesterday, said that Germany had 6,000,000 rifles when the war ended. She lost 1,500,000 in the 1918 retreat and had handed over to the Allies 1,690,000. The police and other forces held nearly a million.

He emphasised the difficulty in gathering the others, and said that force would be tried since persuasion and offers of purchase had failed. He promised full delivery of rifles within a year.

The speaker declared that 73,000 machine-guns had been handed over to the Allies and the various German forces held 16,000, which could not be delivered within the year.

SENT TO TURKS

Replying to a question as to what had become of the captured Allied weapons, he said that they had been utilised for the Bulgarian and Turkish armies.

General von Seeckt declared that Mr. Lloyd George's figures on the subject of artillery were inaccurate. He maintained that Germany had practically fulfilled her obligations in the connection.

Germany had 20,000 big guns at the end of the war. A thousand had been lost in the retreat, 5,800 were delivered at the armistice and 11,000 had subsequently been handed over to the Allies.

ONLY 346 LEFT

General von Seeckt declared that, after counting the guns in the possession of the Reichswehr, etc., there remained only 346 to be handed over.

He also argued in favor of prolongation of the period of evacuation of the neutral zone, on the plea that most of the arms to be surrendered were there.

Mr. Lloyd George, replying, disputed the accuracy of the German figures. He emphasised that the fact that many of the men under arms in Germany were revolutionaries did not make the matter less serious.

He considered that General von Seeckt's figures established solid ground for suspicion and anxiety. The Allies did not want to interfere in the internal affairs of Germany, but they could not tolerate possession of arms by individuals for anarchistic purposes.

MANY SHIPS LEFT

At the Conference of the military, naval and air experts, the Germans admitted that there were still three dreadnoughts three cruisers, sixteen destroyers and fifty torpedo boats to be delivered; likewise large numbers of aircraft with engines.

The Germans further admitted that out of 12,000 aeroplanes, 150 had been handed over and 4,000 destroyed, whilst out of 24,000 engines, 1,500 had been handed over and 10,000 destroyed.

ALLIES DETERMINED

Spa, July 8.—The following communique was issued by the Conference this evening.

"At the opening of this afternoon's sitting of the Conference, Mr. Lloyd George expressed the determination of the Allies to secure execution of the Treaty, which hitherto had been most inadequate, with regard to the surrender or destruction of material and the reduction of effectives.

He indicated the extent to which the Allies had taken into account the observations and difficulties of the new German Government, on whose sincerity of intentions he did not wish to cast a doubt.

Mr. Lloyd George also pointed out that a fresh postponement was only granted on definite and certain conditions, the realisation of which would be checked and guaranteed by precise sanctions.

REPLY TO PROPOSALS

The following Allied reply to the German proposals was then read:

"Conditionally that Germany (a) proceeds immediately to disarm the Etwohnerwehren and Sicherheitspolizei, (b) publishes a proclamation demanding immediate delivery of all arms held by the civilian population, and decreeing effectives in the case of contravention (if the Government's legal powers are not sufficient, it shall immediately obtain the same legislatively), (c) immediately executes the whole series of measures necessary for the abolition of compulsory military service, as provided by the Treaty, (d) delivers to the Allies for destruction, and helps the Allies to destroy all arms and military material beyond the quantities authorised by the Treaty, (e) assures the application of the unexecuted aircraft and naval clauses of the Treaty—then the Allies agree (1) to extend to October 1 the period provided for the reduction of effectives, at which date they shall be reduced to 150,000 men, including a maximum of ten brigades of Reichswehr.

ACCEPT POSTPONEMENT

"The Allies also agree to a further postponement, expiring on January 1 next, for the reduction of effectives to 100,000, when their exact composition and organisation must be completed according to the treaty; (2) to authorise the German Government to keep in the neutral zone until October 1, for assisting in the collection of arms, such a number of effectives as may be communicated to it by the Inter-Allied Commission of Control; (3) to take all necessary measures to prevent contraband traffic in arms from the occupied territories intended for the other part of Germany.

TO OCCUPY MORE

If, before January 1 next, the Allied Control Commissions in Germany find the present arrangements not being loyally carried out—for example, if, by September 1, the legislative measure hereinbefore provided have not been taken and have not received the widest publicity, and if the destruction and delivery of material is not proceeding normally; if, on October 1, the army has not been reduced to 150,000, including a maximum of ten brigades of Reichswehr—the Allies will proceed to occupy more German territory, either the Ruhr or some other region, and will only evacuate it when the present conditions have been wholly fulfilled.

"Dr. von Simons, the German Minister for Foreign Affairs, remarked that the solutions enumerated in the foregoing note were being imposed without the German delegation having been called on to discuss them.

WILL DO HER BEST

"He commented on the Allies reply seriatim, and finally declared that the German Government would do its utmost to carry out the conditions and would have to submit to the consequences if it did not succeed.

Mr. Lloyd George said that, if the Conference was to continue its labors, the German Government's formal acceptance must be confirmed.

Dr. von Simons announced that he would communicate the Government's reply tomorrow."

GERMANS AMENABLE

Spa, July 8.—Even the French were favorably impressed, as M. Millerand himself told American correspondents, by the fact that the Germans at the Conference have shown themselves willing to do something which up to the present they have refused to do. M. Millerand believes that the Conference will be concluded on Sunday.

Speaking at the Conference last night, M. Millerand said that he only expected that the Brussels Conference could be held on July 21, probably with an American representative present.

LOOKS BRIGHTER

This statement is taken as meaning that the French and the Allies generally believe that, now, settlements will be reached even on the question of reparations, to the extent of forming some basis for the Brussels Conference to work upon.

Reparations will not be discussed, however, until after the question of disarmament has been settled, as well as the question of the punishment of German war criminals.

NOTE BAD EFFECTS

Berlin, July 8.—The German press notes with regret the bad impression the Germans have made at Spa.

The Government organ, the Lokalanzeiger, complains of the "atmosphere of distrust" surrounding the Germans, but the Freiheit (Independent) roundly accuses the authorities of amicuity and trying to deceive the Entente with regard to war material.

The journal says that the unsupported assertions of Herr Fehrenbach and Dr. Gessler produced a laughable effect.

COAL DELEGATION

Paris, July 8.—The Matin's Spa correspondent, referring to the coal situation, says that, with a view to obtaining priority for the Entente, it is proposed to establish a permanent delegation of the Reparations Commission at Berlin, to deal especially with coal.

MAUD LLOYD GEORGE

Paris, July 8.—The French press continues to applaud Mr. Lloyd George's firmness at Spa.

The Temps hopes that the Allies' tenacity will equal their rigor in demanding the disarmament of Germany.

COAL ONCE MORE

Spa, July 10.—The following communique is issued today:

"Yesterday afternoon's meeting of the Conference was almost entirely devoted to the coal question. Herr Bergmann explained that the shortage of deliveries was due to the Rhine floods and Germany's internal troubles and strikes.

"M. Millerand, replying, pointed out that, notwithstanding the fact that the Reparations Commission had reduced the amount of coal demanded from Germany, from 39 to 21,000,000 tons annually, Germany had delivered, roughly, at a rate of only half the latter amount.

"Moreover, Germany on her own authority had reduced her deliveries by 10,000 tons daily under the pretext that an increased supply had been given to Poland.

BETTER THAN FRANCE

"Germany was actually in a more favorable situation as regards coal than France, being able to fulfil 79 percent of her needs against 59 percent in France.

"M. Millerand also pointed out that, at the very moment when Germany was failing to fulfil her obligations, she was making coal contracts with Switzerland and Holland, against the protests of the Reparations Commission.

"The French Premier read a note, giving the details of the proposed Allied measures.

"The Germans have been until this morning to reply."

The Conference then turned to the question of penalties.

A protocol has been signed, laying down that, with a view to hastening the investigation in connection with war criminals, the public prosecutor of the Leipzig Court should send direct to the British Attorney-General and the Allied Ministers of Justice any demand for information or judicial inquiries.

GERMANS TRUCULENT

Spa, July 9.—On signing the protocol with regard to disarmament, the German delegates declared that there was no clause in the Treaty of Versailles which obliged them to acquiesce in fresh territorial occupations, except in the event of failure to carry out the reparations clauses.

Lord Birkenhead and Sir Gordon Hewart were present.

Speeches by the Allied delegates dealt with methods of procedure, the German Minister of Justice agreeing that communications with regard to evidence should be carried on between law officers and not between diplomats. This section of the Conference concluded its work with unanimity.

CONTROVERT STINNES

Spa, July 10.—Today's communique says:

"M. Millerand referred to the inaccuracy and unseemliness of Herr Hugo Stinnes' observations on the coal question. He afterwards exclusively addressed the German delegation, pointing out Germany's failure to carry out her obligations and the reasonable Allied demands.

"The French Premier remarked that Dr. Von Simons himself recognised the mistakes committed by the approval of contracts for the supply of coal to neutrals by spontaneous reduction of deliveries without the consent of the Reparations Commission. He invited German experts to confer with the Allies on this matter.

NEED THE ALLIES

"Dr. von Simons explained the German Reparations plan, which will be presented to the Allies tomorrow evening in order to enable its discussion on Monday morning.

"He indicated that the critical position of German finances necessitated Allied assistance, and also emphasised the capital importance of fixing a lump sum for reparations."

The delegates concerned in this subject met under the Presidency of M. Jules Cambon.

DUBLIN COUNCIL TO HOLD BOOKS FROM BRITISH

Roads Entering City Barred; All Persons Searched: Situation Grave

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 9.—The Dublin County Council has passed a resolution, with one dissentient, not to permit examination of the Council's books by Government agents or to furnish information for taxation purposes. Such information, the Council has decided, shall henceforth only be supplied to the "Irish Republic."

The military last night erected barbed wire barricades on the main roads entering Dublin, and all vehicles were searched. Similar measures have been taken in other towns. The object has not been explained.

The situation to the west and south of Ireland is described as very grave. In consequence of the stoppage of railways a number of towns as a precautionary measure are adopting rationing.

"ORANGE DAY" FEARS

London, July 8.—In the House of Commons this afternoon, replying to Mr. Asquith, Mr. Bonar Law stated that all possible precautions had been taken to prevent disorders in Ireland on Orange Day (July 12).

With regard to Londonderry, Mr. Bonar Law said that, in accordance with the recommendation of the "Citizens Committee," which had been established after the recent disturbances, all demonstrations there were being prohibited, both in the city and in the immediate neighborhood, during July and August.

Mr. Bonar Law also announced that, while the Government proposed to proceed with the Government of Ireland bill, they had most reluctantly come to the conclusion that it would not be possible to carry it before the adjournment.

LI SARCASTIC

General Li Shun, in response, put it most sarcastically by saying that he will never go beyond his own territory one single step. Of course, he insinuates that General Lu, in placing Shanghai under his own jurisdiction, was infringing upon his rights, because Shanghai, Woosung, Quinsan, etc. are all Kiangsu territory.

Tuchun Li's exact words were: "Kiangsu troops will never go a single step beyond Kiangsu territory. Let Heaven be my witness."

The Chamber of Commerce has also appealed to the Shanghai-Nanking Railway to refuse to convey troops to and from points along the railway, and addressed a letter to the Consular Body at Shanghai, to ask foreign importers to sell no arms or munitions to either of the opposing factions.

Traffic between Nanking and Soochow is still being maintained, according to telegrams from Soochow.

The Inland navigation companies, having services between here and Soochow, are reaping a rich harvest. The charge is now between six and ten times that of the normal rate. A single trip costs $26, according to a passenger who reached here yesterday.

The residents in the Lunghua district, which will be within the line of fire if hostilities begin, are moving into the Settlements. Chinese hotels and lodging hotels are crowded to capacity and the rate has been boosted up considerably.

War Criminals Numbered At 892

KLOTZ COMPANY SOLVENT, WORD FROM NEW YORK

Cablegram Says Assets Of Concern Much Larger Than Liabilities

That the Klotz Silk Company is solvent, with assets greatly in excess of its liabilities, and that the trusteeship is purely advisory was the word received in Shanghai in a New York cablegram yesterday. The message, which is dated July 10 and should be of great interest to the people of the silk industry here, reads as follows:

"In order to correct misleading reports concerning condition of Klotz Silk Co. balance sheet on May 31st, showed total assets of: $17,000,000 Gold.

"Raw silk, reduced to market price, plants at cost, of $5,500,000; other assets are merchandise, bills receivable and cash.

"Liabilities are: bonds $220,000.

"Bills payable, including amount due banks against letters of credit: $8,200,000.

"The trusteeship is purely advisory and appointed to represent banks until readjustments have been made. The situation is reported due to shipments of merchandise being withheld, and shortage of funds necessitated the renewal of bank credits. This being the only amount necessary, it is believed that the situation will clear rapidly on re-opening of business. The firm is conducting business as usual."

British Conditions Are Not Agreeable To Others Unless Debts Are Admitted

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, July 11.—As a result of the conversations between the British Prime Minister and M. Krassin, with regard to trade relations between Great Britain and Russia, the Soviet Government has accepted the conditions laid down by the British Cabinet; namely—the evacuation of Persia; abstention from Bolshevik propaganda in Central Asia; and the recognition of previous commercial debts.

ARMISTICE WITH POLAND

The British Premier is understood to have submitted to the Soviet Government an agreement for the immediate conclusion of an armistice with Poland.

The Allies will not concur in these negotiations unless the Soviets recognise all the debts of the former Russian Empire.

U.S. WILL TRADE

Washington, July 8.—The State Department has removed restrictions on trade with Soviet Russia except in connection with shipments of material suitable for immediate use for war purposes.

BOLSHEVIKI DO IT AGAIN, SCORE 9-8

Regulars Stage Strong Rally In Ninth Inning But All In Vain

The Bolsheviki did it again to the Regulars to the tune of 9 to 8. It took three of the Bolshy Pitchers to do it, but they did it nevertheless in spite of a frantic last inning drive on the part of Doc Downs' demon slugger.

A foul line decision by Pop Guernsey in favor of the Bolsheviki was the only thing that prevented the game going to extra innings. The decision was a perfectly just one and could have been called either way but Pop in spite of the howls and gestures of the home gang called it the way he saw it.

With two down and two men on the sacks, Claire took a healthy swipe at one of Bills' offerings and shot the ball a mile a minute over second base. It went by the outfielder too fast for him to handle and three runs rolled in. Bilisy was soaked for two more the next inning and four more were made in the 5th and 6th due to a combination of hits and infield errors.

The Regulars were held in check by Merrill but they threatened him so menacingly that Manager Dodge shoved Hoppy into the box in order to stem the threatened swatfest. The storm broke before the portsider could get his salary whip into working order and before the inning ended four runs were rammed over the pan. Previous to this Bilisy who was very much in the game all afternoon, had crashed out a homer with Ladd on the bags ahead of him.

Claire was put in after Hopkins was yanked and it was then that the ninth inning rally was pulled off. With two men out Cy Wilhoit hit a hot one to right that landed him on first. Gill came up and banged one to right for three bags scoring Cy and pulling up on third himself.

With Stovall up and two strikes on the batter, Gill started to steal home but was waved out by the Umps on a very close decision. This run would have tied the score. The game was very interesting to watch and the players on both sides showed plenty of spirit. There will be a game this afternoon at five o'clock and another Thursday at the same hour. The Glee Club series will probably begin Sunday so these preparatory games should find the team in the best of shape to meet the varsity lads.

Clay Pigeon Club

There was a large attendance at the above Club on Sunday afternoon, when two competitions took place. The conditions for both were the same, viz: 40 "birds" from Leggett traps under Club handicaps, based on averages. The results were fairly close.

The Delaware Cup shoot resulted in the best score being made by Mr. A. W. Hexamer who broke 37 birds, plus a handicap of 4, making 41. This was tied by Mr. Gilson with 35 plus 6, but he had more double barrels.

The scores were:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Hexamer | 37 | plus | 4—41 |
| Gilson | 35 | ,, | 6—41 |
| Nazer | 35 | ,, | 3—38 |

The De Rossi Cup was won by Mr. E. H. Gilson, who shot in excellent form and broke 38 birds out of 40; which, with his handicap allowance of 6, gave him a score of 44.

The scores were:

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Gilson | 38 | plus | 6—44 |
| Morriss | 32 | ,, | 10—42 |
| Jackson | 32 | ,, | 10—42 |

Cotton Men Agree To 6-Shilling Levy

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 8.—At a meeting of the British Empire Cotton-Growing Committee at Manchester today a letter was read from the President of the Board of Trade, acknowledging the Committee's labors and expressing the satisfaction of the Government at the willingness of the British cotton industry to agree to an annual levy by the trade itself of 6d. a bale on all cotton used in the United Kingdom. This levy is estimated to produce £100,000 annually.

If the industry undertakes this, the letter adds, the Government will recommend Parliament to vote £50,000 annually for five years, in order to enable the cotton-growing committee to carry out its projects.

CALIFORNIA GLEE CLUB BOYS DUE HERE ON SUNDAY

Collegians Will Play 5-Day Engagement—Make Big Hit In The Philippines

Receiving an ovation on their departure from Manila, the University of California Glee Club and Jazz Band will today conclude their engagement in Hongkong leaving tomorrow on the Korea Maru for Shanghai. They will open a five-day engagement at the Olympic Theater here Sunday night.

The Californians played to packed houses during their entire week in Manila. At their last appearance, standing room was at a premium, and disappointed hundreds were turned away. Requests for an extended stay in the Philippine city were made by Manila newspapers and civic organisations, but limited time and their engagements in Hongkong and Shanghai forced the collegians to leave the islands last Thursday.

THREE BIG SHOWS

The California entertainers will stage three complete changes of program in their five days at the Olympic. They will open Sunday with a snappy program of ensemble numbers, solos, selections by the Golden Bear Quartet and Jazz Band, and novel variety acts. Tuesday the bill will be changed to include new soloists, an entire change of songs, and new vaudeville acts. Thursday night, their last appearance at the Olympic, the U.C. songsters will present their own version of the famous American minstrel show.

With Director Clinton R. Morse in the role of interlocutor, two of the club's funniest comedians as end-men, and the entire company converted into a troupe of American negroes by the proverbial burnt cork, the California boys promise some rare entertainment in their minstrel show.

Bookings for the Glee Club shows will open tomorrow morning at Moutrie's.

Japanese Diet Holts Attempt To Censure Ministry

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, July 10.—The House of Representatives today defeated by 283 votes to 145 the motion, proposed by the Kenseikai Party, censuring the Ministry.

In spite of the sultriness of the weather the visitors' galleries were packed in expectation of some sensational development. The visitors were disappointed.

Large forces of police, surrounding the Diet Building and the Parks, prevented any disorder. Some agitators were arrested.

Children, With Souls On Auction Block, Are Saved From Slavery By Miracle

Pretty little Loh Van-sz had just celebrated her fifteenth birthday and was happy in her parents' home at Sunkiang. But the urge of unrest seized her and she longed to see more of the world than was afforded by the sights of her home, suburban city.

She confided her desire for a broader outlook on life to her chum, 15 year old Yih Ching-dee, and to her neighbor, Sung Pau-sz, an olderly woman of eminently respectable mein.

"Do not worry, little one," counseled Madame Sung. "You shall have your heart's desire fulfilled. Bring your little friend, Yih, and we will see the thrilling sights of Shanghai together."

"But we have no money," objected the girl.

"I have funds, you shall be my guests," promised Madame Sung. "But say nothing to anyone about our little excursion. I will explain all to your parents upon our return."

CHILDREN DELIGHTED

The delighted children made their preparations for a trip to Shanghai and, successfully eluding parental vigilance, boarded a train with their benefactor.

The ride through the country was blissful, the sights along the way an unending source of wonder to the youngsters who had never before been away from the family roof-tree.

And Shanghai! It was more glorious than they had dared dream!

The lights on the towers of Wing On's and Sincere's flashed and glittered; Nanking Road, "Great White Way of the Orient," never appeared to better advantage.

The girls were dazzled.

"Now we will see the sights of the great city," promised Madame Sung, when the girls were installed in a room at a hotel on Canton Road.

And see the sights they did.

They went to the "New World," and what fun it was throwing darts at the prize boards, riding the carousels and eating sweetmeats.

They saw the "Temple of Heaven" and had a wonderful dinner at a gorgeous Chinese restaurant.

TIRED BUT HAPPY

Tired, but with hearts overflowing with happiness and gratitude to their benefactor, the children retired to their hotel room.

The event was so great in their lives that sleep had forsaken them and they lay, side by side, and talked of the wonders they had seen.

Suddenly a murmur of voices came to them through the thin partition which separated their quarters from those of Madame Sung.

Their own names were mentioned by the woman and the rumbling bass of a man came in reply. Money was mentioned.

The curiosity of youth was aroused. Creeping to the wall the girls bent their ears against the thin lath and plaster.

SOULS ON THE BLOCK

Then they stared aghast, one at the other. For they had learned that their souls and bodies were being trafficked away.

"I'll give $160 for the best-looking one, $140 for the other," they heard the man say."

There was some chaffering after that but, affrighted and sick at heart, the children crept back to their bed.

In the morning they confronted the woman who had induced them to come to Shanghai with her. With smooth words she quieted their fears and, she said, as an evidence of good faith promised that on that very day they should move to another hotel in Wuhu Road.

Only partially convinced, the girls consented to the change.

A MIRACLE HAPPENS

Entering the doorway of the new hotel, little Loh gave a gasp of surprised relief. She had seen in the dining room a whiter whom she knew to be a true friend, her brother-in-law, Tze Ching-sung.

Without allowing Madame Sung to suspect that assistance was at hand, the girl got word to her relative and told him of her plight. He hurried to the Hongkew Police and it was a matter of only a few moments before Detective Inspector Cruikshank had men on the scene and effected the rescue of the girls.

The evil woman is beginning a term of one year in prison today while the children are riding homeward, wiser perhaps, but still thrilled with a perfectly human satisfaction in having been the heroines of what might make a motion picture scenario.

CASTORIA
for Infants and Children.
Don't Poison Baby.
FORTY YEARS AGO almost every mother thought her child must have paregoric or laudanum to make it sleep. These drugs will produce sleep, and a few drops too many will produce the sleep from which there is no waking. Many are the children who have been killed or whose health has been ruined for life by paregoric, laudanum and morphine, each of which is a narcotic product of opium. Druggists are prohibited from selling either of the narcotics named to children at all, or to anybody without labeling them "poison." The definition of "narcotic" is: "A medicine which relieves pain and produces sleep, but which in poisonous doses produces stupor, coma, convulsions and death." The taste and smell of medicines containing opium are disguised, and sold under the names of "Drops," "Cordials," "Soothing Syrups," etc. You should not permit any medicine to be given your physician know of what to your children unless you or it is composed. Castoria does not contain narcotics.

THIRTEEN IS HOODOO JOSS FOR BURGLAR

Office Burglar Is Given Prison Term Of Five Years By Court

A fondness for typewriters, clocks and electric light bulbs wrote time for the light sentence of five years imprisonment for a Chinese who appeared in the Mixed Court before British Assessor Blackburn and Magistrate Kwan yesterday. The offender is the man who was captured recently by aides of Detective J. J. Kilkenney, of the Central Police. The offender was known in police circles as "The Office Breaker."

Thirteen separate offenses were charged against the burglar. Here is the list:

October 10—6 Kiangse Road, China Java Export Company.

October 16—6 Kiangse Road, Eckman Foreign Agencies.

October 23—18 Kiangse Road, Matsukawei and Company.

November 7—18 Kiangse Road, Matsukawei and Company.

December 10—18 Kiangse Road, Matsukawei and Company.

January 1—18 Kiangse Road Akamatsu and Company.

January 14—18 Kiangse Road, Tasaki and Son.

February 9—18 Kiangse Road, Tasaki and Son.

March 4—18 Kiangse Road, Fook Mow Yoko.

May 8—33 Canton Road, Arkell and Douglas.

May 24—18 Kiangse Road, Matsukawei and Company.

June 21—6 Roochow Road, Mrs. T. Hammond.

That thirteen is still an unlucky number "The Office Burglar" is still convinced in spite of what the soothsayers had to predict at the beginning of the twentieth century. It was on his thirteenth expedition that the man was caught in enclosed premises at 6 Foochow Road. Finger prints that had been taken at the scenes of the robberies identified the man as the one sought for the long series of crimes and he was taken to court.

Hankow Police Get Man Suspected In Bogus Opium Raid

Two Men Accused Will Be Given Joint Hearing Here On July 16

An aftermath of a bogus opium raid in which drug valued at $11,400 was seized by two foreigners and a band of Chinese was seen in the Mixed Court yesterday when one of the Orientals charged with participating in the affair was called for trial. As another Chinese being held for a special hearing on July 16 the Court decided that the men should be given a joint trial.

Two Americans were arrested in connection with the case some time ago but were dismissed for lack of evidence. They have now left the Settlement and their whereabouts are unknown.

The man who was brought before the Court yesterday was apprehended in Hankow and was turned over to the Shanghai police by the authorities there.

Leyland Hodgson Company

Perhaps it would not be fair to criticise the Leyland Hodgson Revue Company too severely on their opening performance last night. The players have only just arrived and the heat must have made them feel anything but frisky. The audience that turned out was flattering in its numbers. It is seldom that so big a house has been seen for the opening show of a visiting company.

But if the audience was large it was warm only physically. It did not enthuse. As a matter of fact, it was flat.

I hope that Hodgson has something more presentable to give us in his bag. It is well known that the stuff that the London stage has been putting up with of late years is pretty bad, and it requires dressed; scenic effects; lighting; and any amount of dancing. It must delight the eyes if it does not satisfy the intellectual palate.

The visitors at the Lyceum Theater had, as their principal feature, in what resembled a triple bill, a farcical revue entitled "Rosebuds."

Rosebud, Miss Helen Suttie, was very pretty, and has a sweet voice and a charm of manner that will rapidly make her popular with the playgoer. The piece itself is poor in construction and its dialogue becomes at times almost puerile.

The cast worked hard, under trying circumstances, but they did not get over with the bang that we all hoped for.

For a musical show more vocalists seem to be needed, and any amount more dances ought to be put in to brighten things up. Hodgson himself might have more to do with advantage to the show. He has voice, style and ability. Percy Baverstock made valiant efforts to get his lines over and he was well supported by Miss Florence Harrington.

The show opened weakly with a couple of concerted numbers and this was followed by an excellently written one-act comedy by Keble Howard entitled "An Order To View." In this Miss Florence Harrington showed that she is excellent as a character actress. The audience liked the piece.

By the way, the audience here have been spoiled in the matter of programs. During the war they paid fabulous prices for them, but before and after that period they have always expected to get the programs for nothing. Last night ten cents was asked, and the ten cents was grudgingly given.

Mr. Leyland Hodgson, give the programs away, and give us something a little better than you did last night, and we will all defy the hot weather and pay you a visit.

Mr. Leyland Hodgson mentioned to me at the end of the show that the ladies whom he sent to the front of the house to sell the musical numbers of the show did not meet with as nice a reception as they expected. There seems to have been an impression that the management was out to make money from the sale of these songs.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Hodgson assures me that, all through the tour, the music has been sold and the proceeds given to local charities. The same will be done here.

DOMINO.

"REDS" THROUGH, KROPOTKIN SAYS

Prince, In Hiding, Declares Communism In Russia Is A Fizzle

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

London, July 9.—In a message to British workers, Prince Kropotkin, who is living near Moscow, urges the reopening of relations between the Western nations and Russia.

He warns the workers of the West that the present regime in Russia is an example showing that communism cannot be introduced.

"The attempt," he says, "to build up a communist republic on the lines of a strongly centralised State, under the iron dictatorship of a single party, is already ending in failure, although the new conceptions about the rights and position of Labor have come to stay."

Prince Kropotkin emphasises that this is the way, not to accomplish revolution, but to render its realisation impossible.

He warns British workers against taking such a line of action.

609,000,000 Francs For French Army Cars

Government Sold 25,000 At A Profit Of 3,000 To 8,000 Francs Each

Paris, May 28.—The French Government has virtually completed the sale of its stock of army automobiles. The total sum realised was 609,000,000 francs, which does not include the sale of spare parts, tires and other accessories.

One popular make of automobile, of which some 25,000 were sold, cost the Government when new a little over 2,000 francs each. In a more or less dilapidated condition they brought from 5,000 to 10,000 francs each at the sale, plus a 10 percent luxury tax. The usefulness of the motor cars to the Government does not cease there, however, their owners under the new scale of taxation having to pay from 600 to 1,200 francs yearly, according to the size of the city in which they are used. In addition, the Government gets one franc 50 centimes on every gallon of gasoline and oil used in their operation.

LEHAR'S OPERA A SUCCESS

Vienna, May 28.—Franz Lehar's new opera "The Blue Mazur," produced at the Wiener Theater, shows the composer's wonted mastery, brilliant orchestration and melodious invention. It is partly or grand opera character in the last two acts. A quintet, a dreamy waltz song and a stirring march excited special admiration.

Lehar said that he thought "The Blue Mazur" his best work and would personally conduct its American production this coming Fall.

1500 Turks Dead At Bali-Kissar

(Reuter's Service)

London, July 8.—A Greek communique, issued today, on the operations in Asia Minor states that the Nationalist forces, opposed to the northern Greek Army at Bali-kissar numbered 20,000, of whom 1,500 were killed and wounded and many were captured or surrendered. It is estimated that only 4,000 escaped to Brussa.

The whole material of the Turkish northern army was captured, including thousands of rifled and two big German guns.

CONCERT TONIGHT

Prominent Russian artists are to appear tonight in a concert that is to take place at the Y. M. C. A., 120 Szechuen Road at 9 o'clock. The musical offerings, to consist of solos, duets, trios and quartets, will be both in English and Russian. Tickets are on sale at Moutrie's. Among those taking part are Mme. J. Markovsky, soprano, Mme. T. Nikolaevsky, contralto, Mr. N. Tuevsky, tenor, Mr. V. Vojin, baritone assisted by Mr. Michnevitch at the piano and Mr. Solis at the piano.

NO BAND CONCERT

Owing to the Public Band being placed at the disposal of the French Municipal Council during the National Fete days, the 13th and 14th) the public performances in the Hongkew Recreation Ground and Public Gardens are cancelled.

"PRICELESS"

is a popular way of describing anything which has proved to be of exceptional value, and may therefore be employed to describe that old and favourite preparation—Beecham's Pills. The ever-increasing army of men and women who have experience of this excellent medicine generally use some such phrase as "priceless" or "Worth a guinea a box" when speaking of Beecham's Pills. This is certainly high praise. But it is well-merited. Beecham's Pills have proved, times out of number, to be a "priceless" preparation in the treatment of digestive ailments. They bring relief; they safeguard the health; they effect remarkable cures. All who suffer in any way from biliousness, sick headache, constipation, impaired appetite, and the resulting loss of energy and want of tone should take

Bukit Toh Alang Rubber Estates, Ltd.

The chairman in his speech at the annual meeting yesterday of the Bukit Toh Alang Rubber Estates, Ltd., said:

The Directors' Report and Statement of Accounts for the year ended March 31, 1920, giving very full details of the working of the Company Estates, have been in your hands for some days and with your permission I will take them as read.

At our last annual meeting I had the unpleasant duty of announcing and explaining the reasons for a shortage of lbs. 33,000 in our estimated output of rubber. It is very gratifying to the Directors to be able to come before you this year and report a much healthier state of affairs. Our Manager whose original estimate for the year's output was lbs. 170,000, was justified in later amending this estimate to lbs. 206,000; the actual output was lbs. 208,711, an increase on the previous year's output of lbs. 49,782. No further acreage was taken into the tapping round and owing to the process of "thinning out" the number of trees in tapping at the end of the present financial year was 7,000 less than at the end of 1918-1919, in spite of which the output showed the large increase already mentioned, which confirms the efficacy of thinning out.

ESTIMATE FOR YEAR

The estimate for 1920-21 is 295,000 lbs. We are taking a further 166 acres into the tapping round and prospects of reaching the estimate for the current year judging by returns to date, are good.

With the increased output, notwithstanding an unavoidable increase in general charges our "all-in-cost" of production at 1/2.13 shows a reduction on last year of nearly 2d. and I think you will agree that the figures for 1919-20 given in the comparative statements in our report under the headings of "Output and Tapping" and "Cost of Production" show satisfactory improvements. The item in "Cost of Production," "Sundry Losses" 31d. represents the writing off of the loss on rice supplied to our labor force.

We have a forward sale of rubber outstanding—2 tons per month for all 1920 at 1s. 11d. per lb. ex-warehouse.

You will notice that in dealing with the amount standing at credit of "Profit and Loss Account" we are recommending the writing off of Tls. 4,681.25 from our "Buildings and Furniture" asset, reducing that account to Tls. 1. This is being done in anticipation of expenditure which will have to be faced under this heading perhaps this year, but probably next, in the building of a new factory for the installation of Machinery to deal with our increasing output. This is not necessary yet, and we propose delaying the matter hoping that machinery manufacturers will in time bring the abnormal prices now asked, down to a more reasonable figure.

LABOR IS PROBLEM

In common with other estates, labor has been a difficult problem, a constant changing round, taking place throughout the year. This problem is giving us and the management a lot of trouble, after due consideration of the matter, we have decided to gradually adopt the "Alternate Day Tapping" system which is strongly recommended by many authorities on rubber in the Malay Peninsula.

The system appears to have few drawbacks and claims to do away with or at least alleviate many of the difficulties facing the management in the way of labor. Bark consumption, etc., etc.

Briefly the idea is to tap half of the trees in the round one day and the other half the following day, and thus alternate and give all the trees one day's rest between each tapping. It is claimed that more careful and productive tapping can be done in this way, while the task of supervision should be more efficiently carried out. It is possible that a modification of the year's estimate of output may be necessary, but on the other hand there should follow a reduction in labor and other charges and the net result will suffer little in the process. Practical experiences of this method show extraordinary good results and we adopt the system, confident that in the long run, it will be most beneficial to the estate.

HEALTH IS GOOD

Although the health of our labor force has been good, we have been very unfortunate with regard to the health of the management, Mr. Kenny remained as Acting Manager until December 14 last, when Mr. C. Y. Bentley, a most promising man, was engaged, but unfortunately he contracted pneumonia and died in March after a short illness. Mr. Jensen late of Bertam estate who has now been appointed Acting-Manager is in the process of bringing the Estate up to a proper standard of efficiency, the unavoidable changes in the management and staff during the year having naturally let things down to a certain extent in this respect.

On the Kuala Kettil Extension the difficulties with regard to labor and management have been keenly felt and beyond an endeavor to keep the 300 acres planted as free from weeds and lalang as labor at the management's disposal would allow, and the felling of 46 acres ready for planting, little has been done since last year. The matter is being taken in hand by our new Manager. An European Assistant now in residence on the estate will superintend more closely all work there. A marked improvement is already reported by our Visiting Agent Mr. Sinclair in his report dated April 30. The building of a bungalow for the Assistant in charge on the estate, has been sanctioned.

Apart from the difficulties mentioned above, your Directors have been handicapped in giving free instructions with regard to development of this valuable portion of your property from financial reasons. The set back during 1918-19 in the output of rubber leaving us only a profit of Tls. 1948.08 prompted us to adopt a cautious policy with regard to further development at Kuala Kettil.

METHOD OF FINANCE

Although under the method of finance temporarily adopted by arrangement with certain representative shareholders at our Annual Meeting held on July 24, 1917, we have succeeded in planting up 300 acres of this excellent land, and have thus to a certain extent attained the objects for which the new land was taken up; i.e. the reduction of the capital cost per acre, and the development of land superior in productive qualities to that of your old estate; the fact remains that the present method of financing the new venture is for many reasons not satisfactory either to Shareholders in general or the Directors. Kuala Kettil Extension Account stands as an asset in our Books to the extent of Tls. 28,704.50 and estimated expenditure for the current year for upkeep of the planted area and the planting up of the 46 acres already felled, without any further extensions, is Str. $41,895 this amount will again have to be met out of our liquid assets. To put it plainly before the Shareholders, if the new land had not been taken up and worked our liquid assets, or funds available for distribution in dividends would today be over Tls. 400,000 instead of the Tls. 13,960.64 we propose to carry forward in Profit and Loss Account to next year's account.

Now gentlemen there is nothing to regret in the taking up of the new land, for from recent sales of rubber land in the Malay States a valuation of our new land would show a handsome margin over and above the amount at which it stands in our books and it appears to the Board that with an easier money market here steps should now be taken to partly finance future development of the new land without encroaching so unduly on the prospects of dividends on the whole undertaking. It is particularly necessary that this should be done in order that a more definite and economical manner of development than the present hand to mouth system allows, may be introduced.

LOOKING TO FUTURE

With this object in view the Board hopes shortly, provided we can get the support of some of our largest shareholders, to call you together to consider a scheme for this purpose either by reconstruction, or by the method originally put before you at our meeting of July 24, 1917.

There is little to say about the Accounts but I might mention that the final balances were converted at exchange of Tls. 30⅝ to Strait $100 ruling on the March 31, 1920, and it was necessary before closing the Books to write off from Profit and Loss Account Tls. 5,759.35 representing loss on exchange.

Our funds in Penang converted at the above rate have not been drawn and at today's exchange say 45, would realise Tls. 11,370 as against the sum of Tls. 7,757.90 mentioned in the accounts.

To comply with the New Order in Council the Secretaryship of the Company was transferred to Messrs. J. A. Wattie and Co., Ltd.

Before asking you to pass the Report and Accounts by the usual resolution I shall be glad to answer to the best of my ability any questions with regard to the estates or the Accounts, which any shareholders would like to ask. There being no question the following resolutions were adopted:

RESOLUTION I

That the Directors' Report and Statement of Accounts for the year ended March 31, 1920, be presented, and the disposal of the balance at credit of Profit and Loss Accounts as recommended be passed and adopted.

RESOLUTION II

That the appointment of Mr. A. J. Welch as a Director of the Company be confirmed.

RESOLUTION III

That Mr. N. G. Maitland be re-elected a Director of the Company.

RESOLUTION IV

That Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews be re-elected Auditors of the Company for the ensuing year at a fee of Tls. 300 for auditing the Company's Books at Penang and Shanghai.

WHEN BABY IS CROSS AND SLEEPLESS

When baby is cross and sleepless there is something wrong and the little one is taking the only means he has of telling it. Under such circumstances the temptation to administer a sleeping draught or opiate of some kind, is often great, but don't do it unless expressly ordered by a competent doctor who has seen the child, instead give him Baby's Own Tablets, which are guaranteed to contain no opiates; they send the child to sleep simply because they remove the causes of his sleeplessness and make him feel good and comfortable.

"My baby was not feeling well and was cross and troublesome. I gave her several doses of Baby's Own Tablets and they did her so much good that I would not be without them for many times the amount they cost. I strongly advise every mother to give them a fair trial," writes Mrs. F. Emery, of 8 Barclay Place, Grand Rapids, Mich., U.S.A.

Baby's Own Tablets are a remedy for simple fever, indigestion, constipation, colic, diarrhoea. They make teething easy and destroy worms. Of chemists, or post free, 60 cents the vial, from The Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

A Dog of the Streets — By Arthur Wallace Peach.

THE glass was brimmed with amber liquid, refreshing to the throat and delightful to the soul; his lips were at the rim when the earthquake came; and Mateo woke to become conscious of a stiff toe being driven vigorously against his side.

He gulped the last drop of the dream-drink, scrambled into a sitting posture, and looked up into the pinhead eyes of Racca, the innkeeper.

Mateo had learned by long travail that when Racca's face was mottled a wrathful condition of the innkeeper's soul was signified.

"Carrambos!" the innkeeper exclaimed in a hoarse monotone, and went on to say in a mixture of Mexican patois and bad Spanish: "Sleep! You do nothing but sleep! Listen!" He stopped. "The coughing Englishman, Marston, with the beautiful daughter, is here. He's in a hurry. He wants a man for his hacienda on the Quivino Road. I tell him—you. Watch out. If there's a chance to rob, watch for it; let me know, and I will tell Jose, see? Come!"

Mateo was fifty years old, bloated by much drink and long loafing; his head was bald; one leg was three inches shorter than the other; and his eyes were bleary; but he obeyed the command as if youth were still upon him.

The tall gray-haired man shoved his glass from him, turned a thin face toward Mateo, that was empty of all joy of living, gave him but a glance from dull eyes, and beckoned him to follow.

Mateo was willing. Racca nudged him with an elbow, and Mateo nodded. He had played in many a dark game with the innkeeper, with the thin, vile Jose and the oily Mendel. The Englishman was a "lunger," fighting for life against consumption; he had purchased, so rumor had it, the tumble-down hacienda, and was planning to live there with his daughter, who had followed him from their northern home to help him fight the grim battle. It was whispered abroad, also, that Marston had been an easy mark for Racca's scheming. Mateo knew what he was to do.

As Mateo went down the street behind the stooping Englishman the little ninos, beginning to appear for play, hailed him with taunts and nicknames, and he dropped his head and slunk on. All his life he had been a joke in Andres, the butt of fun and farce for old and young. In all the years he could remember he had never received a kind word or look. Racca alone tolerated him, for Racca could use him.

Marston halted at the bank, and sent Mateo for the horses. When he returned with them, he looked up, his blear eyes expanded, and he gasped a little. On the steps of the bank stood the most beautiful girl he had ever seen. In her light riding habit, the lithe, strong curves of her figure stood out; her hair was brown, bleached by wind and sun to a golden tinge in places; her eyes were brown, too. Mateo caught in them, as they rested upon him, an amused light but a kindly one, and he stared steadily.

"Mateo!" Marston said sharply. "Ride behind!"

The ride through the rolling country, across the dry flats, by the peculiar earth formation known as La Santita, to the hacienda was quickly made.

There Mateo began to gather the information that would serve Jose and incidentally began for the first time to really live.

Marston gave him an automatic revolver of high grade make, and taught him how to use it. Mateo forgot he was the "dog," as he had been in Andres.

But he remembered.

One afternoon, while dozing in the corner of the ranch house he heard Marston say:

"I agree to have the money here to-morrow morning for Morales; I agreed to pay cash for the land. I'm simply sick, and I'm going to send you to the bank to get it. Mateo will go with you. Start back as soon as you can after the heat. I shall worry until I see you, but I don't see any other way to get the money here now. I expected to be stronger before"——

Mateo heard her clear, cheery laughter interrupt her father. "Cheer up, pater, old top. You're getting better every day. Mateo and I will go and get back."

Mateo was smiling to himself and thinking of the pleasure of the ride, when he was seized with a sudden trembling that made him sweat. It would mean death for him if he did not tell them of the opportunity at hand; he had been sent out there for a purpose—to be a spy! Mateo shook in the shadow of his corner. He was afraid, mortally afraid. He remembered the night that Savas had died—the fall of Jose's hand, the thud—and the wrenching and gagging of the dying man in the little room in which he had been trapped.

Mateo scrambled to his feet, whispering, "Jesus Maria!"

Fifteen minutes later with his very soul aquiver within him, he rode away from the corral with the girl. Only one thought was in his mind: to see Racca and tell him what was on foot.

She was cheerful and happy. She looked over as they rode along.

"Mateo, you don't seem very cheerful!"

"No, Senorita, my life has been one of sorrow."

She smiled with amusement at the gloom in his voice.

"Weren't you ever in love?"

He shook his head.

"Well, I am," she answered, "in love with life!" I'll race you to the ridge."

Mateo's heart chilled as he rode in answer to her challenge. She was beautiful—and there was Jose.

* * * * *

In a back room of the inn Mateo explained to Racca and Jose the girl's errand to Andres; and he listened as Jose, his lean face hardening with greed and joy, planned the robbery.

"Look you, Mateo! We shall hide by La Santita—in the mesquite! As you pass by, I and Mendel will appear. See that she does not shoot. These Northern senoritas are often quick with the gun. You shall have something for your share. Don't fail us! It you do"—Jose's teeth clicked hollowly behind his lips, and he went through the pantomime that suggests the knife thrust.

The Door Opened, and Eason Said, "Miss Marston, I Think I Better ... with You." She Looked Back and Her Eyes Were Tender. "I'm Safe with Mateo."

Mateo shook and sweated and hung back. "By Mary, I will do it!" he swore.

Jose grinned as he saw the other's fear, and nodded. "Now go. Remember!"

Mateo slid out the back door and around to the street.

"Hail, Mateo, the Brave!" a musical voice chanted laughingly, and he, glancing around, saw the smiling face of a girl through an aperture in the adobe wall. His head drooped at the mirth in her eyes.

A few steps brought him to the bank door, and there Miss Marston was waiting. She looked at him with pitying eyes.

"Why do they make so much fun of you, Mateo?"

"I am nothing, Senorita, just a dog of the streets," he answered.

She smiled as she swung into the saddle. "Mr. Eason told me that you wouldn't be of much use in protecting me, but I think you would."

Mateo glanced up furtively at the bank window, and he saw the keen eyes of the American cashier looking at him anxiously. He was evidently worried if she were not.

The door opend, and Eason said, "Miss Marston, I think I better go with you."

She looked back and her eyes were tender. "I'm safe with Mateo."

"I shall ride out to-night, however, or earlier!" he said quietly.

"Do," she answered smiling; and Mateo, watching under his eyebrows, knew that there was love between the two, and he guessed more—perhaps she did not have the money; perhaps Eason was to bring it out. Mateo was nervous.

They rode slowly to the outskirts of the town, and the horses picked up their pace.

A few miles farther, and, as if with one glorious sweep of a gigantic wand, the bright day changed into a golden dusk of moonlight and shadow.

Mateo listened and looked in silence. He saw not the mountains but La Santita, rising like the figure of a robed saint, beyond them. Jose and his partner were hiding in the shadow of the mesquite thickets at its base. Mateo knew his life was safe, but he was worried for two reasons: perhaps, she did not have the money after all; perhaps, Eason might decide to follow immediately.

La Santita rose higher and sharper in outline as they drew near, and suddenly the shadow of the towering rock fell upon them. They turned to take the downward trail to the flats, and the horses slowed up. Here was the place!

The blood was pounding through Mateo's weak body. He watched with strained eyes and taut nerves; perhaps——

Two figures darted from the bush. The horses reared. The girl exclaimed sharply, then screamed in a voice that went through Mateo like the thrust of a knife, as she was dragged from her horse and thrown to the ground. Mateo watched her gasping struggle. She fought wildly at first, then gradually weakened. She spoke just once in a weak, spent, pleading voice: "Oh, Mateo, help me!"

Jose turned from the saddle bags. His voice was harsh with threat. "The money isn't here! There is it?"

Mateo cringed, and the horses he was holding shied as Jose stepped toward him. "I know not, Jose!"

"Search her!" Jose said angrily.

The girl answered faintly: "Don't touch me, you beasts! Let me go—I'll get the money if that is what you want!"

With one arm loosed, she drew from a fold in her skirt the package.

Jose seized it and laughed. "Dios! Here it is!" He shoved it into his shirt. "Now, hurry, put her on the horse," he snapped.

She caught his meaning. "You have the money—won't you let me go?"

"You go!" he repeated in English, then said in Spanish: "We are going over the border to the Rajio Hills. From there we shall send Mateo to your father for money for you. If he does not send it—well, a rose was made for plucking; and you—are the rose!"

"You aren't so contemptible as that!"

He was bringing up her horse but turned at her words, catching her meaning if he did not understand her words.

"Would you look at me? Am I handsome? No! not in your eyes! But I shall have if I want it—what Eason would have!"

The girl murmured as she moaned; and at the sound something clattered in Mateo's soul.

He said fearfully to Jose: "Jose, you have the money, let the girl"—

Hard against Mateo's teeth came Jose's hard fist, and Mateo staggered.

"Peace, dog," Jose said sharply.

Mateo felt a warmish, sweetish something on his lips, and he knew it was blood. The clattering in his soul grew louder. He hoped Eason would follow soon; then his hope died as fear entered. Eason would discover what had happened if he went to the ranch; but if he did, and Jose's party were overtaken—Mateo shook with dread; it would mean death for him.

His terrified thinking was broken by Jose's command.

They started away, breaking sharply from the main trail and taking the one that crossed the arid alkali waste beyond the river.

Mateo rode behind. Only once did she turn to him, and then her faint words had shown no trace of anger, only a deep, dreadful pity—"Mateo, you poor, little coward!"

He had quivered at the scornful words and hung back until Mendel urged him on with a curse.

The girl aroused herself and begged piteously for water.

"Jose!" Mateo called hesitatingly, "won't you give"——

Jose turned and said savagely: "Peace, you! There is none! Peace—or you sleep long!"

Mateo, already dumfounded at what he had heard himself say, for he had spoken before he thought, sank into quick silence.

Soon the trail grew harder under foot; hills loomed sharply and suddenly. They climbed a ridge, and beyond it Mateo saw a small valley. In the centre a small spot gleamed like a pool of silver. His parched mouth opened in a murmur of joy—"Del Carto." It was the famous spring of which he had heard many tales.

The horses caught the scent of the water and hurried on. Soon it lay before them, down in a deep cut.

Jose and Mendel gave their reins to Mateo and slid down to the pool. Mateo stepped beside the girl's horse. "You shall soon have water, Senorita," he said softly.

The girl lifted her sagging head; clear consciousness seemed to come to her at the familiar sound of his voice; she stared at him with eyes that were bright and wide in the moonlight. In a tone that started the clattering again in Mateo's soul, she whispered:

"Mateo, oh, Mateo, Mateo, if you were only a man!"

His lips drew tight over his teeth; a warm something came from his lips again, from the reopened bruise where Jose's fist had landed.

"I not a man!" he muttered, and something seemed to burst within him into roar and flame.

Jose and Mendel were drinking slowly, and therefore wisely, stopping to rest, then drinking again; their thirst was great. Jose was sprawling on the spring's edge, as was Mendel. The two dark figures against the brightness of the silvery pool made two splendid targets, and the automatic was hair-triggered.

In that brief moment, that partook of eternity, the clattering in Mateo's soul died to a beautiful peace; he heard the girl's low gasp of great wonder and understanding; he ran his tongue across his battered lips; he did not tremble—he was a man!

With a sigh of some new, deep, rich content, he touched the trigger once—twice.

THE OTHER SIDE OF THE WALL By Kathryn Green

NOTHING of the house could be seen from the street. This was not all due to the height of the wall, but to the trees and sloping land as well. Still it was a very high wall and a solemn one, so forbidding that it demanded conjecture.

To the youths, reclining on the opposite lawn, it afforded outlet for all that the Spring had awakened in them. There was already a pronounced difference in their types, although their bond of youth and imagination had leveled and likened them.

Tom and David were strongly contrasted, the former a sturdy, wholesome youth, big and blond, with love of action twinkling from his light blue eyes, and the latter a pale and dreamy lad with thoughtful, dark eyes and a slim form. Dick, the third, was a remarkable mixture of his two friends. He combined David's mind with Tom's action, and so, unconsciously, ruled the other two. It was a wonderful friendship—a triple alliance. Even their day dream was the same; the girl whose name they knew and nothing else except that she lived in the dim house beyond the wall.

"Of course, I know just what she's like," David, the dreamer, was saying in his dreamiest tone; "she doesn't want to go—she's afraid to. She's lived there so long that she's part of it."

"You're mad!" cried Tom; his blue eyes stormed as he turned them in appeal to Dick. "Can you imagine her wanting to stay there, Dick? Of course, some one keeps her there and I'm going to get her away."

"Why, yes, Tom," Dick answered, slowly. "I can imagine that she might want to remain. Dave usually has some good ideas, but he never makes anything out of them. She might want to stay, Dave. I agree with you, Tom, though, that some one ought to get her out, only that some one isn't going to be you or Dave, for that matter."

Tom and David looked scornfully at each other.

"That's a good compromise, Dick," agree David; "you see the trouble with Tom is that he can't think of fighting such an abstract thing as a girl's character and inclinations. He wants to have an irate father or something like that to overcome."

"And the trouble with you, Dave," Dick defended the wrathful Tom, "is that you don't think of overcoming anything. I suppose you think you aren't worthy and couldn't make her happy."

And then as Tom's clear laugh rang out, Dick added, "and above all, you're the best sport about kidding I've ever seen."

"I suppose that's why you both do it so much," laughed Tom.

"Of course, Tommie, or we wouldn't want to," agreed David.

"Or dare to," Dick chimed in.

Then with peace restored, they returned to their favorite subject.

"If we can't decide whether she wants to stay there or not, let's discuss why she ever went there in the first place," suggested David.

"Why, of course, her crabbed old father is keeping her away from the world because he hates it."

"I knew it was an irate father you wanted, Tom. When will the elopement come off?"

"Well, before you pick on mine, Dave, let's hear your idea."

"Why, she comes of a wonderful family who have lost all their money and they don't want her to associate with the people she would have"——

"And how can they afford the house, then?"

"You're too practical for Dave, Tommie. Don't you see, her name is Miss King, which, I suppose, is short for princess. Is it, Dave?"

"Well, what's your idea, Dick," laughed David.

"Why, 'Princess' Lydia is probably sacrificing her life there for some one she loves or"——

"And what good could it do any one to have her hide away?"

"Oh, Tom, you're so frightfully exact. Why bother with a little detail like that?"

"Well, in any case, none of us would be worthy of her, especially if she were so noble," declared David, the idealist.

"That wouldn't make any difference," Dick cried excitedly. "It's cruel to let her sacrifice herself there—she's too beautiful to be allowed to suffer."

"Oh yes, what does she look like? Don't you think she's a little blonde and darling?"

"Oh, Tommie!"

Dick and David both smothered the protesting sufferer.

"No, she's slim—and dark, with great black eyes, and she fits in the gloomy old house with the long, narrow windows and dark, winding halls."

"Oh, no," gasped poor Tom. "Say fellows, wouldn't you be afraid of her then? I want her to be real and lovable. No mysterious person for me."

"If she isn't exquisite and stately I don't want her at all," cried Dave. "I suppose you'd like her to be spending her time at tennis, wouldn't you, Tom? Instead of reading in the dim, old library, or walking in the gardens, reveling, but a little awed by their bright beauty. Of course she's glorious, but calm and deep in her glory. Imagine a boisterous Lydia, Dick."

"I didn't say she was boisterous," roared Tom. "She's just little and dear and fresh and real. You want a slim, airy creature that slinks away in the shadows and hardly dares to smile for fear of ruffling her calm and grace. I say, Dick, isn't Dave the greatest ass in America?"

Dick smiled.

"I agree," he answered, "Dave is an ass. What's the use of making something seem unattainable if it isn't to make you live to attain. Yes, Dave, she must be delicately graceful and composed. Of course, she has to be imperious and shy at the same time, but she's all that just to make her more delightfully dear when she comes to you."

"Well, I bet I know her first!" cried Tommie.

"I guess you will, Tom," replied Dick, with unexpected meekness. "I'm going away first to make something of myself. Do you think she'd leave there for me now? Do you think I'd even ask her?"

Tom's honest face saddened, but suddenly his smile beamed forth.

"Gee! You're great, Dick! Let's both go away and leave Dave to dream of her and when we come back"——

"Find me married to her?" finished Dave. "No, Tommie," he added, "you don't need to be afraid of that. But I bet you'll never marry her—there are such piles of 'real, fresh, little, blond, darling, lovable'—let me see, what else?"

"Shut up," came a growl, but then, "Dick," added the easily convinced Tom, "are you going away and not notice any other girl and just work for her, when you've never even seen her or heard anything except her name?"

"No," said Dick, slowly. "No—I'm going to see her—I've thought of a way."

"Are you going to climb the wall?" from Tommie.

"Will you write to her?" came from Dave.

"No," laughed Dick, "I don't want her to think me a burglar or a fool; I'll be a book-agent with a wonderful bargain. She has ordered loads of books in town, so that will interest her. I'll just push by the butler in book-agents' accustomed manner."

"What a romantic and inspiring introduction," and Dave rocked with laughter.

"Do you really think you can get away with it?" asked awestruck Tom.

"I'm going to do it," Dick answered slowly. "It isn't a question of whether I can or not—it's just going to be done."

"Tom and Dave tried to answer, but they found there was nothing to say. Finally Tom asked softly:

"When?"

"Now!"

And Dick walked away.

After a few paces he turned and added, "wait here, it won't take very long."

For two weary hours Tom and Dave strained their eyes for his return. With a mixture of longing and dread they finally were rewarded by the sight of his rapidly nearing figure. When he finally stood before them neither could ask the big question, but only stared as he stood silently a second. Then, a smile spread over Dick's features.

"She's wonderful," he gasped. "She's lovely. But—she's sixty three."

NOTICE

We beg to notify the public that we, the undersigned on the 19th February, 9th year of China Republic (i.e. the 30th day of the 12th moon of the Chi Vee old calender year), bought over the entire assets of the two Nanking Dispensaries in Tientsin and Nanking respectively, including all stocks, furniture, fixtures contained therein, and outstanding credits as well as undelivered goods ordered from abroad prior to the execution of this said purchase, except debts that will be paid and settled by the said two dispensaries themselves.

THE CENTRAL DISPENSARY,
Tientsin, 5th July, 1920.

NOTICE

We beg to notify the public that the undersigned has on the 19th February, 9th year of China Republic (i.e. the 30th day of the 12th moon of the Chi Vee old calender year), sold the two dispensaries, both in Tientsin and Nanking, to The Central Dispensary. It is understood that this sale includes all stocks, furniture, fixtures contained therein, and outstanding credits as well as undelivered goods ordered from abroad prior to the execution of this said sale, except debts which will be paid and settled by ourselves. Henceforth the undersigned bears no responsibility whatever on the profit gained or loss sustained that might be incurred by The Central Dispensary.

THE NANKING DISPENSARIES,
Tientsin and Nanking.
5th July, 1920.

NOTICE

The public is hereby respectfully informed that on the 5th of March, 1920, the goodwill and assets of Nanking Dispensary, Nanking, have been sold to new proprietors who, for the sake of making a plain distinction of the transfer, have modified the name of the firm as follows:—

Nanking Dispensary.
YAH-KEE (協記)

All liabilities contracted by the Nanking Dispensary prior to the execution of the transfer on March 5th, 1920, will be settled by the former owners, and all claims therefore should be filed with the Central Dispensary of Tientsin. The new proprietors will only shoulder responsibilities for such undertakings as bear their new chop as shown in the above.

Gives Up Sawing Wood To Do His Own Tailoring

London, May 28.—William of Hohenzollern, former Emperor of Germany, is trying his hand as a tailor, according to a Central News despatch from Amsterdam. He is cutting out patterns for many new suits with which he is going to stock his wardrobe, and the despatch quotes a trade paper as declaring he is "excelling at the job."

"How unfortunate it is," says this paper, "that William missed his vocation. After all the notoriety he achieved as an Emperor, one can imagine what would have been his fame as a tailor."

MUNICIPAL NOTIFICATION

No. 2715.

SHANGHAI MUNICIPAL COUNCIL 6 PER CENT. STERLING LOAN, 1920.

Amount £750,000

Price of Issue £100 per cent.

UNDER the authority of Resolution VII passed at the Annual Meeting of Ratepayers on April 7, 1920, the Council hereby invites applications for Bearer Debentures (with coupons attached) in the 6 percent. Sterling Loan of 1920, which is issued on the following terms:—

(1) Debentures to Bearer, with Sterling interest coupons attached, will be issued at £100 percent in denominations of £1,000, £500, £100 and £50.

(2) The Debentures of this issue will bear interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum, payable on June 30 and December 31 in each year by sterling demand draft on London at par, or in silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's Shanghai current demand buying rate on London on date of presentation of the relative coupon. The first payment of interest will be made on December 31, 1920.

(3) Applications, accompanied by payment in full, will be received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, on and after May 1, up to and including June 30, 1920, the Council reserving to itself the right of closing the subscription lists on any day previous to June 30, 1920, by Notification in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai.

(4) Payment on application will be accepted in Silver (local currency) at the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation's current selling T.T. rate on London and will bear interest from date of payment, or in Sterling by T.T. or Demand Draft on London. Interest on payments made in Sterling will only accrue from the date on which the relative remittances are received by the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, London.

The cost of all telegrams incurred through payment by Sterling T.T. shall be paid by the applicant.

Payment will be acknowledged by Banker's Receipt pending issue of the Debentures.

In the event of any applicant not being allotted the full amount applied for, the amount over-applied for will be repaid in full, plus interest at the rate of 6 percent per annum from the date payment was received in Shanghai or London to the due date of repayment in Shanghai, as notified to the applicant by special notice from the Council.

(5) The Loan will be redeemed at par on June 30, 1950, but may be redeemed by the Council in whole or in part on June 30, 1930, and/or on any subsequent date or dates on which the half-yearly interest is payable, subject to the Council giving six calendar months' notice in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai. In the event of any partial redemption of the loan the numbers of the Debentures to be redeemed will be decided by drawing. The numbers of such drawn Debentures will be notified in the Municipal Gazette and Public Press of Shanghai not less than three months prior to the date of repayment.

Application forms can be obtained on and after May 1, from the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, No. 12 The Bund, or from the Treasurer and Comptroller, Finance Department, 24a Kiangse Road, to whom all enquiries should be addressed.

NOTICE

Referring to the fact that this Company has been instructed by the Ministry of Communications to take charge of the expenses connected with the personnel, repairs, and insurance of the "Hwah" line of steamers, this Company is unable to assume charge of the above mentioned matters as previously announced, because the Chinese Government Steamship Administration has not acted in accordance with the terms of the agreement entered into and the orders of the said Ministry. Consequently we returned all transferred documents to the said Administration on the 30th of June, 1920. These documents have been refused acceptance by Commissioner Sah of the said Administration.

Inasmuch as this appointment to take over charge of matters aforesaid was received directly from the Ministry of Communications, this Company does not recognise any third party having authority in this; and has accordingly reported the case to the said Ministry for instructions before further action. We therefore beg to announce to the public once again that meanwhile this Company will bear no responsibility whatever for expenses relating to the aforesaid personnel, repairs, and insurance of the above mentioned vessels.

KINGMAN & BROS.
How to Preserve the Teeth

In order to keep the teeth in a good condition scientific precaution must be taken. Through negligence, decay and numerous other affections such as tooth-ache, dental periostitis osteo-periostitis, necrosis of the jaw, etc., may arise. During the process of ingestion, there are settled on the teeth, some deposits of mineral and organic matters, called tartar, which possesses a morbid power of pressing the gum. As an inevitable result of the presence of this tartar, the teeth will become elongated and movable and will, by degrees, absorb away the enamel, leading ultimately to the decay and degeneration of the teeth. The tartar is so hard and resistant to the process of brushing that it cannot be scraped off except with dental instruments specially devised for that purpose.

Dr. KINGMAN offers to the public his service for preserving their teeth at an annual subscription Fee of $10.00 per head to be paid in advance.

The work to be done by Dr. KINGMAN to the subscribers consists in:—
(1) Cleaning of the teeth quarterly
(2) Filing with gold platinum alloy only, when the teeth present holes.
(3) Inspecting the teeth at any time at the desire of the subscribers.

Mr. Lamont, Japan And The Situation In China

MR. Thomas W. Lamont, partner in the firm of J. P. Morgan and Co., recently passed this way. He first visited Japan where he consulted the bankers and statesmen and got them to agree to certain matters having to do with China. They also agreed that they would try to influence their government along the same lines.

Mr. Lamont represented a financial group in the United States and he also represented financial groups in Great Britain and France. The three great powers named were trying to arrange something in conjunction with Japan which would bring peace to the Far East and give the League of Nations a chance.

Mr. Lamont worked like a trojan. After the Japanese financiers had said they would do their best along the lines suggested, he came to China and arranged a lot of matters along similar lines. Then he went back to Japan and found that the Japanese bankers had fixed everything up. Their goverament agreed. Then he sailed for home. That apparently was the one mistake he made. He should have stayed out here and watched his agreements work out.

But he didn't have time. Mr. Lamont is a busy man with many interests. He was the American financial adviser at the Peace Conference. He is director of many companies. He had to go home. He didn't know Japanese politicians and bankers very well and therefore he went home contented and happy. He had accomplished something for the peace of the world. If everybody stood perfectly where they had agreed to stand, all would be well and he had no reason to suspect, after meeting the gentlemen, that they would not stay put for a single minute.

So when he arrived home he told everybody that Japan had turned out to be all that everybody hoped she would be. On his trip out he had interviewed the Japanese bankers and statesmen and they had agreed to everything he suggested and on his return to Japan he had found the papers all ready to be signed. The New Consortium had been formed and peace was assured.

The members of the Commonwealth Club of California gave him a big greeting. And to all the organisations and individual interviewers he gave the same thought, and in reading this it must be borne in mind that Mr. Lamont was stating the actual results of his visit as he interpreted them. Here briefly is what he said:

"Japan's entry into the consortium upon precisely the same terms as England, France and America has advanced by at least one step solution of the Far Eastern problem," Mr. Lamont said. "It is not simply the formation of this international group upon the formula proposed by the American Government that is important, but rather the fact that in the process of organisation there must have been developed a more complete understanding of the Far Eastern situation among the Governments themselves as well as among the strong banking groups which, with the consent of their Governments, have formed this consortium.

"Japan undoubtedly showed broadmindedness and wisdom in waiving her reservations regarding Manchuria and Mongolia. She was courageous in recognising that those reservations were of no value to her, and, if maintained, would only serve as an inevitable bar to her entering as a free and full partner in the consortium."

Now one of the first and most important stipulations in the agreement upon which the New Consortium was formed was this, that none of the signatories should intervene politically or financially in China. Action should only be taken as a group. That was the fundamental necessity that brought the New Consortium into being.

But what happened as soon as Mr. Lamont got out of sight? What do we see in China today? Does it resemble anything comparable to the situation that Mr. Lamont had every reason to believe it would be?

The fact is that as soon as Mr. Lamont left trouble started. It began to look as if the New Consortium would cut off the graft and bring peace to China. This was a thing so distasteful to Japan that it could not be tolerated. Therefore Japan immediately violated her promises to Mr. Lamont. She loaned eight million dollars and a trainload of ammunition to Tuan Chi-jui. This enabled him to surround the Presidential Palace in Peking again, and again force the issuance of mandates against the will of the President and People.

The Japanese have done practically all their business in China through Tuan. He is responsible for all of the secret agreements. He has repeatedly mortgaged China to Japan in his effort to retain power. He will continue to mortgage it to Japan so long as he remains in power because Japan is the only power that will continue to buy.

A Very Great Man Indeed

Knut Hamsun's great story, "Growth of the Soil," is having an enthusiastic Press.

Miss Rebecca West, in the New Statesman, writes:

"In these days of indiscriminate praise of foreign authors, when one gets Ibanez handed to one as if he mattered, one has to erect bulwarks of scepticism round one's literary soul. Moreover, no English publishing house did anything to remove it. George Egerton (whose services in the way of introducing foreign authors to England are forgotten by this generation) translated a book of his named 'Hunger' about twenty years ago, but since then no book of his has been done into English.

"However, a Scandinavian publishing house named Gyldendal has now set up an office in London with the intention of issuing English translations of Scandinavian novels, and their first volume is Knut Hamsun's 'Growth of the Soil.' They deserve all praise for the enterprise, which makes translation at least a systematic business; at present the foreign author and the English reader are too much at the mercy of the desultory reading of persons who, rightly or wrongly, think they can translate and have succeeded in imposing that view on some publisher. They deserve praise also because they have retained some idea of how to print a book so that its page looks a sober and dignified thing. But above all do they deserve praise because they have chosen for their first book this 'Growth of the Soil.'

"It appears that one was wrong and the rest of Europe was right about Knut Hamsun. He is a very great man indeed. From the very first chapter one knows that here is one of the creators, one of the Prometheans who have stolen fire from heaven. He has the Godlike qualities that belong to the very great, the completest omniscience about human nature and a superhuman freedom from fatigue in the labor of setting down his knowledge.

"This is a vast book about the long, slow lives of peasants in the Norwegian mountains, and there is not one interstice of dullness or fatuity in its wise and brilliant substance. It sets down the whole truth about three human beings as an all-knowing Providence might know it, and this is the more tremendous achievement because the truth is not in the main sensational."

The limericks are arriving. Up to the present over a score have been tested. The editor thinks the majority are worse than mine. By the way limerick writers, do not send in more than one at a time; concentrate upon one theme, and then punch. Here is one of the the best up to the present and the fact that it appears means that the handsome writer gets a compradore order:

We are hearing some terrible wails.
About living on four fifty taels;
But there isn't a doubt
If the squeeze was cut out,
We'd be sending cash home by the mails.

J. B. probably would have done better with bales instead of mails. By the way, has anything of yours ever forced its way into print? If not, here's your chance. Remember there's $2 for every limerick printed and $20 for the best one every week.

It is the Twelfth of July as I write, and Orangeman's Day at that. Reuter's Agency sends us news that every effort is being made to stop or prevent disorders and demonstrations in the "Poor Distressful Little Emerald Isle."

William of Orange gave his adherents the orange and not the lemon and that fruit has had pips ever since. At the Battle of the Boyne Orange William met James II. The latter and his followers were defeated and away went James to the home of an Irish Lady called Tyrconnel. His first remark to her was, "Madam, your countrymen have run away"; the lady with her native wit replied, "It would seem, Sire, that you have won the race."

Another episode of the time showed the disgust that the valiant Irish troops had for James. When he had disappeared, the Celtic soldiers called out to the enemy, "Change kings with us and we will fight you again." Storm and stress for a few years ended with thousands of the defeated Irish emigrating to France and forming the Irish Brigade.

Sparring is going on apace at Spa and Lloyd George is trying to pin down the German to his promise. During the winter the Reviera would be a nice spot to carry on with the discussions. The map of Europe will want careful study on the part of those applying for passports. The new geography inspires Charles Ness to write in 'London Opinion'

Now Petrograd is Leningrad
Before long we shall see
Lloydon, Carfast, Glaslaw
Palsquith and Winstondee.

It is possible that our rowing men will hold their regatta in the autumn at Hen-Li-Shun.

Actors give their names to collars; actresses give their names to perfumes, cold creams, chocolates and other beautiful things; and now we have movie stars inventing special dishes for the table.

Theda Bara has concocted a new salad dressing, in which lemon juice, paprika, Roquefort cheese and chopped pimento are included. It is suggested that this might go well with Mutton Jeff. [Insect! Ed.]

That reminds me of the pictures. I believe that in Japan at the cinema single men sit on the left, single women sit on the right, married folk sit in the center. It seems from the news items that this gives cause for quite a lot of unpleasantness owing to the married men in the middle ignoring the "Eyes Left" rule.

The polo game was a great success and now most of us know all about the "riding off" and the "riding on" tactics. Some of the scribes were out in their calculations of the personnel of the local four. Dallas turned out to be the star despite Anno Domino or avoirdupois. His ponies were wonderful and for this happy state Dallas himself is to be congratulated. Hardly a day has passed that he has not been out training himself and his ponies.

The approaching French celebrations on July 14 brings to mind a little story of a French poilu who had the misfortune to tear his nether garments just before an attack on the German lines. Evidently well brought up by his mother, he lamented the fact that it was impossible for him to repair the damage. His camarade was of a philosophical frame of mind. "Pouf," said he, "the enemy will never see your back!"

Dr. Helmer Key Tells How The Socialists, A Minority Party, Control Sweden And Work For Industrial Peace

BY DR. LOUIS LEVINE
(New York World)

What does it mean to live under Socialist Government?

I put this question to Dr. Helme Key, editor of the Swedish Journal, who has just arrived from Sweden, where a Socialist Government has been in power for about two months. Dr. Key is not a Socialist nor a revolutionist. The only kind of revolution he has been actively interested in is the "Revolution in Stagecraft and Stage Mangement," on which he wrote a book last year. Dr. Key began his career as assistant professor at Upsala University in the history of literature, and has for many years been a member of the Executive Board of the Royal Theater of Sweden. But his main interest at present comes in economics and international politics.

"I am eager to answer your question," said Dr. Key. "Some people seem to have formed an exaggerated idea as to what a Socialist Government such as we have in Sweden really means. I should like to dispel such ideas. Our Socialist Government may not last through the summer. But even if it should, it would not mean any radical social experiments such as are being tried in Russia. I believe it is important for Americans to understand this, because not only in Sweden but in other European countries the Socialist Parties have become an important factor in politics. The situation in Sweden may, therefore, help to illustrate the possibilities and limits of a Socialist Government under present-day conditions.

"We have in Sweden a condition which may be duplicated any day in any other country. The Socialist Party did not receive a majority of votes in the last election, and it does not have a majority in either House of our Parliament. In the Lower House it is the single largest party, but it has only eighty-seven seats. The Moderate Party, to which I belong, has fifty-five seats, and the Liberals have sixty-three. To this you may add fifteen members of the farmers' two leagues and ten Radical Socialists. As a matter of fact, the difference between the Moderates and Liberals is very slight. I do not believe there is a man in Sweden who could tell the difference. Nevertheless, the Socialists are permitted to hold power and to control the Government.

"The explanation is this: The war has brought to the fore sharp and complex problems which were never dreamed of before. This is true even of a country such as Sweden, which was a neutral in the war. Especially perplexing are the financial problems. The war has to be paid for, the high cost of living has to be met, the shortage in houses demands attention. Taxation is a burning question everywhere. We have to face it in Sweden. We Moderates think that we have gone the limit in direct taxation. The Socialist and some of the Liberals want to go further in their schemes of raising public money by means of higher taxes on income and even on capital. This is a serious issue in France. It is exactly what has brought the Socialist into power in Sweden. The Socialists are willing to go before the country this summer, when our new elections are held, with this issue: Shall the local Governments (similar to your townships and counties) have the right to impose tax for local purposes? On this single issue the Socialists gained power, and the matter will be fought out within the next few months.

"I feel certain that the Socialists will lose. The majority of the people in Sweden—some four million out of a total of 5,814,000—live in the country districts. About one-half of our people depend upon farming for a living, and the bulk of our land is held in small holdings of twenty hectares or less. The farmers as well as the manufacturers and the commercial community are opposed to an income tax for local purposes. The Socialists usually get the vote of the city workers, of some of the agricultural laborers and of a small middle-class people. They cannot hope for a majority. Under our system of proportional representation the Socialist get the full benefit of all the votes cast for them, but they cannot get enough votes to control the situation."

I asked Dr. Key what would happen if the Socialist Government were continued in power after the new elections.

"Nothing very radical," said Dr. Key. "This is really the important phase of social politics at the present time. Control of the Government by the Socialists does not necessarily mean the immediate realisation of Socialist programs. The chief issue which now divides Socialists and non-Socialists is the nationalisation of material resources and some industries. There can be no question of nationalising the land. The small as well as the large landholders will not permit it. But even in the nationalisation of industries the Socialists cannot proceed any faster than conditions warrant.

"The situation in Sweden is a good illustration. Our main industries are mining, iron and steel, lumber and textiles. Of the 500,000 workers employed in industry, trade and transportation, about 75 percent are employed by corporations. The relations between the workers and the owners and managers of corporate enterprise present the same problems as in the United States and elsewhere. But we have a way of solving them which is perhaps different. We let both sides organise to their fullest capacity and then have them confront each other in all their strength.

"To be more specific. Our industrial workers are well organised. The General Federation of Swedish Trade Unions—which is the largest labor organisation in the country—embraces a majority of workers in the most important industries. On the other hand, the employers are organised not only in trade organisations, such as the Iron Works Employers, Textile Mills Federation, etc, but in a General Federation of Swedish Employers, which has a membership of over 1,200, employing nearly 175,000 workers. Originally, this federation was organised to insure employers against strikes. But in time it devoted itself primarily to the development of collective bargaining between employers and employes. Industrial relations in Sweden may be said to be dominated by collective bargaining and the collective agreement.

"We have found that this is the surest way to industrial peace. The workers cannot strike unless they have the authorisation of their central organisation. No employer can refuse the demands of his employes unless he has permission from his federation. Every time a conflict of interests arises both sides arrange for arbitration. The fact that both sides are conscious of their respective power makes them more reasonable and conciliatory. This was clearly shown recently when a general strike and lockout over the issue of the eight-hour day was avoided after a deadlock which lasted a few days. Government Department of Mediation and Conciliation also played an important part in bringing the conflict to a satisfactory end.

"This is because our employers and workers are aware that though they may quarrel over many things, their dependence upon successful industrial management is mutual. The Socialists represent the workers. The trade unions work in close co-operation with the Socialist Party, and the same men are prominent in both organisations. Our Socialists are forced to consider first of all the effect which their program may have upon the prosperity of the workers. The spirit of compromise which characterises the relations of our workers toward their employers is carried over into politics and will, as I hope, dominate the methods of the Socialist Party also in the future.

"It is true, there is in Sweden, as in all other countries, an element which clamors for radical reforms and which is ready for more revolutionary measures. There are the so-called Young Socialists, who split off from the Socialists over two years ago and who are in sympathy with extreme Socialist ideas. There is also the Swedish Workers' Central Union, which is Syndicalistic in spirit. But these radical elements are not numerous and their influence is small.

"I can now answer your first question directly. A Socialist Government, such as ours is, affects the main features of economic life but little. It is largely a matter of politics. The Socialists may come into power for a while, but they will be out again. Whether this happens once or several times makes little difference. Our industrialists and business men make their plans much the same way. 'We in Sweden, as people in other parts of Europe, want economic security and prosperity, and we can have neither until we have a real peace. Meanwhile, we are trying our best to organise our commercial relations with the world, and especially with the United States. We shall have no fear for the future as soon as the re-establishment of a normal and peaceful life shall have banished the sinister spectre of revolution. We do not wish to stop economic and social evolution, which means normal and healthy progress."

Matching Dollars With A Preacher

(New York Sun)

In a recent number of the Baptist the pastor of a small church, having received from a committee an appeal to cooperate in one of the great drives for money, issues a challenge. It is addressed to any fifty laymen. He challenges each and all of them to give of their incomes above living expenses a percentage equal to the percentage of his income over living expenses which he will give. He will be liberal in his interpretation of "living expenses." He says:

"You may have one servant or 100. You may have a new suit of clothes for every speech you will make in the great campaign, while I will 'carry on' in my nine-year-olds. But beyond the living expenses you are to render an honest account and give at least the percentage of margin that I will give. You ask us pastors to co-operate. Do you mean it? Will you come across?"

It is evident the challenging clergyman is rather warmed up and this, together with his training in one of the universities distinguished in athletic achievements, may account for the somewhat "sporty" ring to some of his phrases. But he is clearly very much in earnest, and at last accounts—the challenge was issued May 10—there had been no acceptances of his offer.

The statement as to his own income and expenditures this pastor attaches to his challenge is an interesting document:

"For the sixteen years of my present pastorate we have had a salary of $900 a year and the use of a cheerful parsonage.

"The place where we live is a resort where prices are always inflated to the limit.

"The salary has never sufficed for the necessities of life and the benevolence program that seemed right to undertake, hence we both [the pastor and his wife] tutor preparatory and college subjects.

"This last year the Mistress of the Parsonage and I gave $90 to missions, besides aiding in the support of the church.

"We have given to people who were hungry and cold and naked; we have given to the Red Cross, to Syrian relief, to the Y. M. C. A., to the Y. W. C. A., to raise the salaries of indigent Yale and Vassar professors, to plant trees in France, where two fine lads of the family lie buried, and to some half a score local causes.

"Last spring in the effort to put $6,000,000 across I gave of my income a percent equal by estimate to the percent of his income given by our leading layman. Then to make up the deficit I gave 50 percent of my previous gift."

In view of this statement of receipts and disbursements there will be no surprise at the pastor's statement that "the Mistress of the Parsonage essays to wear her cloth suit in its seventh season, and the good trousers I bought nine years ago are still doing duty as "best" on an average of two or three times a week," and that he has not been able to afford a vacation for four years.

The "fifty leading laymen" challenged represent a good many hundred millions of dollars in their combined wealth. If they were to accept his pastor's challenge, and if the well to do in other denominations were to rise up to the standards of self-sacrificing benevolence set by the spirited clerical challenger, what a tremendous boost charitable enterprises would experience!

Jack London

Dear Sir.—Can you please state when, and where, did Jack London die? Was there any reason given for his suicide?

A SUBSCRIBER.

July 8, 1920.

Answer.—Jack London died, if memory serves, about two and one-half years ago at his home, Glen Ellen, Sonoma County, California. He did not commit suicide, but succumbed to an attack of pneumonia.

No Qualms

(From the Kansas City Star)

We asked a low-browed bandit:
"Sirrah, how can you stand it
To sneak around at night and thug and steal?
When you slug and hold up
fellers, break into and rob cellars.
Don't you painful qualms of conscience ever feel?"
Replied the hardened villain:
"Aw, nothin' short of killin'
Disturbs the least or causes me to fear.
Before I was a robber I was workin' at the job or
The avocation of a soulless profiteer."

Strong Backs And Weak Minds -:- By Gene Fowler

Cracked Kennedy, The Defective Detective

The eminent detective, Cracked Kennedy, was sitting beside the fire. The warm Spring day chilled him to the bone—so much to the bone that he kept his bowler hat drawn snugly above his muscle-bound ears. He turned to his assistant, Clara Clutchme, who loved her work as fervently as Bergdoll loves Governor's Island, and drawled:

"How long since you sent my Wilton velvet toupe to the laundry?"

"Two weeks," answered Clara, who was at Page 210 of "The Chestless Sex."

"Fourteen days," corrected the noted detective.

The bond robbery puzzles have been easy for Kennedy to solve. The very day after Arnstein disappeared it was Cracked Kennedy who announced it. He had read it in the morning papers. When Arnstein returned Kennedy failed to sing out the news for the simple reason that he had left his spectacles on a drug store counter. With the prescription that Mr. Kennedy absorbed he had more need of roller skates than he had of eyeglasses.

Everyone remembers the night that Sir Reginald Chambers-Street was robbed of his alum solitaire. That is, everyone remembers it except Sir Reginald, whose cellar is the most fluid place in New York.

Jake the Jolt, who played first hypodermic in Chink Louie's cocaine orchestra, was arrested by the stupid police and charged with the crime. Jake was a plug ugly who boasted of never having slipped on a second-story sill. He knew more about brass knuckles than Caruso does about spaghetti. He parted his own hair with a black and had the heart of a ten-minute egg. His tender side, however, was shown when he cried every time he didn't get the brass ring on a merry-go-round.

Cracked Kennedy, who was always ready to say a bad word about a good man, ordered the police to release Jake. He deduced that Jolt was innocent when he had the following conversation with the narcotic concertmeister and heroin virtuoso:

"Did you pinch Sir Reggie's sparkler?"

"You said it that time."

"Therefore," chirped Mr. Kennedy, "he didn't do it. He's too big a liar to tell the truth."

Few criminologists, or, for that matter, few ornithologists, zoologists, chiropodists and other dieticians, could penetrate the mind of an underworld citizen as accurately as could Cracked Kennedy. He had a camera eye and a kodak mind. His orbs took pictures. His hands took anything they touched.

When Stuss Game Slim murdered Dromedary Dan in Ptomaine Joe's oyster house, who but our matchless sleuth, Cracked Kennedy, was called? Somebody wanted him on the phone. Casenote Charlie, a stool pigeon, was talking:

"There's a killing coming off tonight at Joe's places," Charlie told his chief.

"That means the Government will go back to the railroads," hissed Cracked Kennedy, "and Ellis Island won't have home rule after all."

Mr. Kennedy would be prodigal son if some one hadn't cancelled his return ticket. He first began studying footprints when his old man kicked him out of the family menage in 1860. Historians refer to it as the beginning of the Civil War. Physicians have classified it as concussion of the furthermost vertebrae. For two months thereafter Cracked Kennedy thought of his father every time he sat down.

When the mast of the Resolute was carried away in the yacht's trial spin with the Vanitie, Mr. Kennedy knew what had happened the minute he looked at the vessel. This surprised his friends and silenced his enemies. All of them thought him too stewed up on dandelion sarsaparilla to have seen anything. The falling mast struck Cracked Kennedy in the monocle, whereupon he chortled:

"Call the forest rangers, the trees are falling!"

Mr. Kennedy is a bug on cup races, but not the kind that are held on water. The more cups there are and the more stuff there is in the cups, the better Cracked Kennedy likes it. As he puts it (and he certainly can put it faster than Woody can slap vetoes):

"Don't water the stock. Let's have it straight."

The death of Carranza has put a crimp in Cracked Kennedy's plans. It seems he was working on the "Subway Gum Machine Mystery." (So is every one else). He wanted a set of false whiskers and was setting out for Mexico to borrow a fitting chin border when Obregon got a corner on the tapestry market.

"I am baffled," declared Cracked Kennedy to Clara Clutchme. "I am foiled again. But I wish you would hurry through Page 210 of that book. Once before I ran into a serious setback like this. It was when the Smith Brothers cough-dropped off, one by one, and I couldn't get desirable accommodations in beards."

"Don't give up," Clara piped. "While Charlie Hughes is there is hope."

Garrett P. Serviss's Article

How Mystery Of Eclipses Thrills Beholders, No Matter How Often They Are Seen—Some Facts About Great Shadows

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

The heavens have no spectacles more grandiose than their shadows; nothing else which, when rendered evident to sense, so powerfully thrills the beholder. An eclipse never loses its impression of mystery, but there are eclipses of which only astronomers are aware, while the play of shadows in the solar system and among the star deeps is incessant, though rarely brought to our attention.

Night itself, is a shadow and has a shape.

An earthly night is a phantom cone of darkness, 8,000 miles broad at its base, and tapering to a vanishing point, whose distance in space continually fluctuates, but averages nearly 860,000 miles.

If at midnight you could fly out to that point, following the axis of the cone, you would find the shadow narrowing around you until at last, as you neared its apex, you could thrust your hand out of it into the surrounding sunshine, and when you emerged from the summit of the cone, instantly night would be gone, and the rim of the sun would flash into sight, a blazing ring encircling the opaque globe of the earth. At least, such would be the case if there were no effects of refraction to soften the borders of the great shadow.

MOON IN EARTH'S SHADOW

When the moon is in eclipse it passes through the night shadow of the earth at a place where the cone is about 5,700 miles in diameter. When the sun is totally eclipsed it is the slender cone of the moon's nocturnal shadow flitting over the face of the earth, that, for a few seconds, buries the observer, and momentarily reveals the stars to him shining through its transparent veil of darkness.

The shadow cone of the moon within which lunar night reigns with an intensity of blackness and of cold unknown on the air-blanketed earth is 2,160 miles across at its circular base, and on the average 232,000 miles long. Its point can only reach the earth at certain times when, owing to the eccentricity of its orbit, its distance from the earth's surface is less than the length of its shadow at that time, for the length of the shadow varies nearly 8,000 miles because of the changing distance of both the earth and the moon from the sun.

As the distance from the sun increases, the cones of night, of both earth and moon, slowly stretch out farther and farther, like creeping fingers, mysterious, unseen and unrevealed until their chilling touch falls upon some substantial object, for though they spread darkness like a stain, yet in themselves they are pure transparency. The length of the earth's shadow varies to the extent of about 28,000 miles.

You are in the moon's night when you stand in the shadow of a total solar eclipse. To be sure, it is only the almost needle-like point of that night, and it is robbed of its frigid sting by the earth's warm air, but nevertheless the fact remains that the moon has reached you with her dusky finger.

If, paralysed by its touch, you dropped down the axis of that chilling cone to its base you would find yourself in a world deserted by death itself, where every mountain is a gigantic tomb, and every empty sea-bed a universal grave.

A THRILLING EXPERIENCE

One of the most thrilling experiences connected with a total eclipse of the sun is to stand on some commanding eminence along the shadow-path, and see the swift sweep, almost a leap, with which the lunar night, narrowed to a beam, comes over you and after a minute or two, flees away, shadowing the air like an etherial wing.

Consider the shadow of Jupiter. His diameter is 88,000 miles, his distance from the sun is 483,000,000 miles, and his night-cone reaches out into space behind him no less than 54,000,000 miles, equal to the distance at this moment separating the planet Mars and the earth.

Jupiter covers his satellites with his mighty shadow as a hen hovers over her chickens. It is a sight of never-ending interest to watch, with a telescope. Jupiter's four moons successively, and sometimes several in a single night, disappearing, as they pass into his shadow on one side, to emerge from it in due course on the other.

The little round dots, as black as ink, that the satellites in their turn cast upon the broad disk of Jupiter are the actors in another telescopic shadow-play delightful to watch.

The ringed-world, Saturn, is an amazing arena of shadows. The wide rings shade the great ball and the ball casts a huge shadow across the rings. The shadow of the rings moves majestically between pole and equator, now in one hemisphere and now in the other, slowly widening and narrowing, though most of this spectacle is hidden from us by the rings themselves. But we can easily see, with telescopes, the shadow of the ball lying across the rings.

Out among the distant stars the shadows play gigantically, but we know little of them except such hints as we get from "eclipsing variables," where great dark bodies circle around suns grander than our own.

CREAM that gives richness to your cakes takes the place of butter in cakes, cream sauces and other recipes.

Think what an economy this means for you! And what a saving in time, for no longer need you spend a tiresome ten minutes or so "creaming" the butter for your cake. Libby's Cream mixes beautifully with the other ingredients, and you will be amazed to see how light and tender a cake it makes—how appetizingly brown the crust is!

Order a can of this rich cream from your grocer today. It is packaged for you by a special Libby method, in famous dairying sections, whose unusually rich milk and cream have become famous.
